VICTIMS READY TO FURNISH EVIDENCE

Will Tell Dry Agent Roberts About the Pajama Party Liquid Refreshments

The pajama party that put two girls from the "Last Waltz" company in a hospital, lost Geneva Mitchell her job as principal with the "Sally" company and left Billy Fitzgerald, Harvard student and banker's son, the object of a marriage intention taken out by one of the nicest girls in Boston, may result in prosecutions under the Volstead act.

Fed Agent James P. Roberts is investigating. "If I find that liquor was transported to that Back Bay frolic I'll see that some one is punished," he says.

"Will tell the world there was hose there," say Miss LaVon and Miss LaSar, the chorus girl guests.

"Billy Fitzgerald talks of blackmail. Wait and see. Is it right for two of his women guests whom he invited, and then deserted, who found themselves beaten, robbed, and deserted, then fired, to stand all the racket? Let Mr. Roberts come to us."

ASKS WARRANTS.

Attorney Bernard E. Carbin, counsel for Miss Marie La Von and Miss Eleanor La Sar, said he would ask for warrants for the arrest of at least three men who were at the party.

Attorney Carbin stated that William F. Fitzgerald, Jr., Harvard student and son of the Boston banker, would not be one of those for whom a warrant is asked. Fitzgerald, while at the party was not one of those who abused the girls, the attorney stated.

Attorney Carbin also intimated that the two naval officers who were at the party would not be among those who are slated for arrest.

Attorney Carbin also intimated today that there may be a settlement. He admitted at least that such a move was in the air.

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien said today that he would be "only too glad to probe the revel in which two chorus girls were injured."

"As yet," he said, "the matter has

Danvers Hospital Attendant Held for Grand Jury in the Death of Insane Inmate

Salem, May 29.—Following the scalding to death of Ernest Williamson, an insane patient at Danvers State Hospital, Frank Bridges, a twenty-year-old attendant, was in Salem District Court today, charged with manslaughter.

He was held in $2,000 for the Grand Jury after testimony by hospital officials that he had been careless.

Williamson was fatally scalded in his bath when the attendant turned on the hot water, then went away, neglecting to shut the water off.

Five minutes later he returned and released Bridges, who could not help himself. The patient died a few hours later.

Dr. Harvey J. Watkins, a member of the hospital staff, swore out the warrant on which Bridges was arrested.

Bridges is from Montville, Me.

MORPHINE KILLED NURSE

Defence Claims Miss Logue a Victim of Overdose of Drugs at Trial of Dr. Stevens

Charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Grace Logue from morphia poisoning, Dr. Michael M. Stevens, of Woburn, went on trial before a jury in East Cambridge Superior Criminal Court today.

Assistant District Attorney Charles Blood, conducting the case for the government, declared in his his address before the jury that "we shall show that Grace Logue died of morphine poisoning, and that she was not a drug addict."

The accused doctor is represented by Attorney Robert Murchie and Attorney Harold Johnson.

The State announced that it would call twenty-seven witnesses, including doctors, chemists, actresses, waiters and merchants.

The aged parents of the dead girl, Mr. and Mrs. Burpee Logue, of West Everett, are among those witnesses. So is Miss Anna Logue, a sister, who was largely instrumental in pressing the investigation into the death of the doctor's young nurse.

"On Friday before Christmas, Grace Logue was in excellent health," declared Attorney Blood," continuing his outline of the case before the jury and Judge John F. Brown.

"We expect to be able to show that on Christmas Eve, which was Saturday, guests at Dr. Stevens' home observed that Miss Logue was in good spirits. There is also evidence she had a cloth around her neck.

"At 9 o'clock the following morning, Sunday, Dr. Stevens telephoned Dr. John Stuart, medical examiner for that district, who, when he arrived found Miss Logue on a couch. She had been dead seven or eight hours.

GAVE GIRL MORPHINE.

"Dr. Stevens told Dr. Stuart that the young woman had been in great pain the night before, because of a bad tooth, from which he had removed the gold crown, to relieve the pain, but had not succeeded in relieving the suffering. Dr. Stevens, by the way, is a practicing physician, not a dentist.

"Dr. Stevens says he gave the girl a dose of morphine, consisting of one-half grain. About one and one-half hours later he gave her a second hypodermic injection, as she was still suffering. A little later he looked into her room. She was ly-

7 YEARS IN HANDS OF GANG

Peters Slayer Fell Into Their Clutches in Pittsburgh; Girl Filed Love Suit

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 29.—First evidence to corroborate the defense of Walter S. Ward, millionaire baker, that he murdered Clarence Peters, the Haverhill sailor as a gesture against blackmailers who had bled him for $30,000 and were after $75,000, was disclosed here today.

Ward fell into the clutches of blackmailers in Pittsburgh seven years ago. As secretary of the Brooklyn Federal League club he had been sailing at a hot pace. He compromised himself with the daughter of a former major league baseball player.

A suit was filed against Ward, charging breach of promise to marry and making alegations of such a nature that the papers were withdrawn from the files.

During the administration of District Attorney R. H. Jackson, who has since been disbarred, the matter was compromised and the suit droped.

However Pittsburgh blackmailers lured Ward into their hands and demanded $10,000 for hush money. Whether it was paid or not is not known. However, it is considered possible that Ward at this time

GIRL SUED HIM FOR BALM

found himself in the clutches of a gang who have bled him for $10,000, $30,000 and finally demanded the fortune, "which Ward says resulted in his shooting young Peters through the heart."

If Peters had anything to do with this band of wolves it is believed that he simply was a pawn, who fell into their hands at an opportune moment and was sent on the errand which led to his death.

The young woman who brought suit against Ward was known as a strikingly beautiful brunette. She met Ward, whose father owned the Brooklyn team on its first swing around the circuit the night of May 24, 1915.

This girl, it is declared, lived with Ward at a local hotel while the Brooklyn team was in this city and was seen in his company constantly. The parties staged by Ward and his girl friend became the talk of Pittsburg's nightlife.

WARD PAID $1,000.

When Ward at first refused her demands, he told his friend, the girl and her blackmailing associates took the case to a local alderman, who is declared to have been "in on the know," and this official promptly ordered Ward held for court on a serious charge.

Ward went to his local friend, who knew the character of the girl and her associates, and had the case "fixed up" by the payment of ten $100 bills.

Boston Search in the Ward Mystery

White Plains, N. Y., May 29.—Part of the investigation of the murder of Clarence Peters of Haverhill, Mass., by Walter S. Ward, resigned police commissioner of New Rochelle and son of the millionaire baker, turned to Boston today.

The Westchester County authorities announced they were investigating an anonymous telephone message that Ward and Peters and a sailor from the battleship Utah attended a party in a Boston hotel three months ago.

The Boston American investigated this story last week. The proprietor of the Boston hotel declared that Ward and his father had not been in the hotel for three or four years. He denied that such a party had been held at his hotel. Employees of the hotel also denied any knowledge of such a party.

The Navy Department today sent a communication to Sheriff Werner confirming previous reports that Peters had received a bad conduct discharge from the navy in Boston in 1919 and had been refused enlistment in the marines.

WAITING FOR INQUEST.

Coroner Fitzgerald said today he would wait the result of further investigation before setting a date for the inquest.

Lieutenant Eugene Roberts of the State police today repeated his conviction that Peters was shot at the spot near the Kensico Reservoir where his body was found. He analyzed dirt on the soles of the dead man's shoes and it corresponded to that of the road on which the body was discovered.

William J. Fallon, a lawyer retained by the family of Clarence Peters, said today he had got in touch with Charles Ross, who was alleged by Ward to have been with Peters at the time he shot him.

Mr. Fallon said two men have been sent to question Ross as to his knowledge of Peters and Ward. It was believed that Ross would be able to throw some light on the mysterious hold which the blackmailing band had on the millionaire Baker.

After Mr. Fallon had left his office, a woman claiming to be Ross' sister telephoned the lawyer's office.

A deck of marked cards, with a straight flush of diamonds missing is beginning to assume tremendous importance for the investigators.

TRACE CARD CLEW.

It is known that the cards played an important part in the identification of Peters after his body was found, two weeks ago, in the bushes near Kensico Reservoir.

In the slain man's pockets, when he was found, were the cards, a khaki handkerchief and a pair of dice.

Other marks of identification, in fact all the things the ordinary man would consider as of any aid to identification, had been removed.

But from the finger-prints on the cards, the authorities were able to establish that the victim was Clarence Peters of Haverhill, who had done a "stretch" in the navy and recently offered himself for the Marines.

SHROUDED IN MYSTERY.

These cards, marked, and with the diamond flush missing, may play an even more important role in the clearing of the mystery, it was learned today.

The sheriff's office is very mysterious about them, but they are being jealously guarded.

Sheriff Werner's office was excited today over the story of James C. Clarke, ex-sailor, and former shipmate of Clarence Peters.

Clarke said Peters boasted of his friendship with Ward, and was the wealthy young man's guest at dinner. He said Peters said he was going to shake all his friends for the son of the bread king.

"I asked him why he didn't shake Ward down," Clarke calmly admitted. "But he told me he was faring well enough as it was. He spoke of Ward as his friend from New Rochelle. I saw them together one day, and it was Ward, all right."

According to the sheriff, his informant refused to reveal his identity but gave a circumstantial story of the Boston revel.

While critics of the Westchester authorities laughed at the story and called it another attempt to "fix things" for young Ward, son of the bread king, evidence came in from other quarters that Peters and Ward had known each other some time, thus bearing out Ward's version of the killing.

A man named Clark told newspapermen he had met Ward in Peters' company and had dinner with the two.

District Attorney Weeks will question the mysterious Clark today as to the source of some of his claims.

Sheriff Werner's "tip" as to the Boston hotel party bears out stories in the Boston American and other Hearst papers of the existence of a debauchery ring in seaport cities, with wealthy libertines as its leading spirits and financial angels.

As if the Ward-Peters case did not already possess sufficient mystery, it was learned today the deck of cards found on Peters' body when he was picked up near the Kensico reservoir had been tampered with.

WOMAN PLOTTED DEATHS.

Coincident with these new developments, police and detectives began a thorough investigation of the plot of a woman in New York city to have Walter Ward assassinated.

Authorities declare that Saturday night a waiter in a cafe in New York city was offered $500 by a fashionably dressed, bejeweled woman to come to New Rochelle and "get that millionaire."

The waiter said, according to reliable information here, that the woman had been dining at the restaurant for about a week and that he had served her several times.

WANTED TO "GET" WARD.

Saturday night, he said, he waited on the woman, and when she had finished her meal, she said that she had a job she wanted done and that there was $500 in it for the fellow who had the nerve to carry it out.

"I've got the nerve, all right, what is the job?" the waiter inquired.

"There's a guy in New Rochelle I want to get," she replied.

"Get how?" the waiter inquired.

"Get right, I mean," she replied. "Who's the man?" asked the waiter.

"Walter S. Ward," she replied.

WOMAN FAILS TO APPEAR.

The waiter said that he would think the matter over and made arrangements to meet the woman later. The waiter immediately informed the police, but when he went to meet the woman she failed to appear. It is believed that she or one of her accomplices watched the waiter to see if he would report the matter to the police.

While the authorities here refused to give the waiter's name, they said that the police at the West 68th street station in New York City could probably tell. All efforts to trace the mysterious woman have failed.

While detectives were working on a clue to find out the person who rifled Peters' body, sheriff Werner was delving into the "Charlie Ross" angle.

WARD NOT AT HOME NIGHT OF SLAYING

New York, May 29.—A story that, if verified, may question the chronology of his slaying night, as given by Walter S. Ward, has come to the attention of the authorities and has excited their keen attention at New Rochelle.

It involves a record of events at the Ward home on the night of May 18. If true, it upsets Ward's story of how he spent the middle hours of that night and brings up even more forcibly than before the puzzling and unanswered question:

What were the circumstances that induced Ward, millionaire, police commissioner at New Rochelle, society man, to make of Clarence Peters, uneducated, untalented and poverty-stricken, with a long police record, an acquaintance eventually impelling the millionaire to go automobiling with the penniless youth?

Last Monday, when he surrendered, Ward said that up to about midnight he was home; that then he went out to meet Peters and the mysterious and missing Charley Ross and Jack; that he drove with Peters to a rendezvous, followed by Ross and Jack, and that at 4 o'clock on the morning of May 16 they wound up near Kensico Reservoir, where the shooting took place.

Reporters were informed today by an intimate friend of one of the men at the affair, that a brides party was held the evening of May 18 in the Ward home, that Mrs. Curtis, mother of Mrs. Ward, was among the chosen guests and that Ward was not in the party.

This informant said that when inquiry was made by guests for Ward, his wife explained he had telephoned late in the afternoon that he would not be home.

Peters' Gun Bought in South, Says Lawyer Sullivan

Important developments in connection with the sale of the revolver with which Ward alleged Peters attempted to shoot him, will occur within a few days, according to Attorney Michael L. Sullivan, who has been retained as counsel by the dead lad's parents.

"I have no doubt that the revolver was purchased in the South," Attorney Sullivan said. "More than that I will not say just now, except that we expect to uncover some startling evidence as to the identity of the purchaser of the revolver."

Attorney Sullivan, who has returned from New York, said that he felt no uneasiness as to the outcome of the whole investigation into the murder of Peters.

DR. STEVENS ON TRIAL IN DEATH OF NURSE

ing on the couch and told him she was more comfortable. Then Dr. Stevens left her and went to bed himself."

At this point Attorney Blood introduced a diagram showing the three rooms occupied by Dr. Stevens in the house on Pleasant street.

"Evidence will show that Dr. Stevens and Miss Logue occupied the rooms with the double bed, across from the doctor's office," the attorney added. "Dr. Stevens went to bed alone. The next morning he got up, dressed and went to town. He bought a newspaper, read it and returned home.

FOUND NURSE LIFELESS.

"The telephone bell rang. Dr. Stevens answered it, and it was then that he discovered Miss Logue dead on the couch.

"Dr. Stuart found on the mantelpiece of the room in which the body was lying a morphine outfit. This consisted of a hypodermic syringe, two glass needles and a vial of ten hypodermic tablets, one-quarter grain, morphine.

"Dr. Stevens said he had purchased a bottle of twenty tablets the night before, but had used only three of those in preparing a hypodermic in the bottle.

"Dr. Stuart performed an autopsy on the body, removed certain internal organs and gave them to Dr. Boos of the Harvard Medical School. Dr. Boos will show that the amount of morphine found in the stomach and the intestines was very slight, less than one three-hundredths of a grain."

Attorney Blood then described the effect of morphine, which was to slow down the breathing.

"One-half a grain of morphine is a very stiff dose," said the attorney.

Attorney Blood then introduced a bill of particulars filed with the court March 27, in which it was charged that the crime was committed by administering an overdose of morphine, or by failure to care for the patient, or by both of them.

The crowd, including many women, gathered long before the opening of court, and by the time the doors of the room were thrown open the hallways were jammed. The twenty-seven witnesses furnished a picturesque centre for the crowd.

MEDICAL EXPERT TESTIFIES.

Conspicuous were Mrs. Burpee Logue and the sister of the dead girl, Miss Anna Logue. It had been expected that the father of Miss Logue also would be there but he was taken ill a few days ago and was unable to go to court.

Mrs. Logue had to be assisted into the court room, as she injured herself yesterday in a fall at home.

Mrs. Arthur Logue, a sister-in-law of the dead girl, Dr. Boos and Dr. George B. Magrath, medical examiner of Suffolk County, were also among the witnesses.

The first witness was Medical Examiner Stuart.

Q.—What happened Christmas morning. A.—I went to the office of Dr. Stevens, in response to a telephone call. I found a young woman lying dead upon a couch. Dr. Stevens told me her name, and said that the night previous, she had suffered a great deal of pain, and that about half past ten he had given her one-half grain of morphine, which he had purchased earlier that evening, while on a sick call. The pain was intense, and was not relieved.

One hour or one hour and a half later Dr. Stevens said, he gave her a second dose of one-quarter grain. Some time later, he said, she told him she was feeling better and he left her and went to bed in his room.

Q.—How long had this woman been dead? A.—Seven or eight hours.

Q.—Describe her condition. A.—She was lying partially on her side, and back; hands under her cheeks and her knees partly drawn up. At her right was a hot water bottle, lying below her face.

DIED FROM POISONING.

Q.—Was she fully dressed? A.—Yes, except for her shoes.

Q.—What caused her death? A.—I believed she died from morphine poisoning.

Q.—What do you base that opinion upon? A.—On the general survey of the case; on the physical findings of the extreme congestion of the internal organs, which is characteristic of a morphine condition.

Q.—Did you find any evidence she had been strangled or throttled? A.—None whatever.

Q.—Were there any marks on her body? A.—The usual post-mortem marks. There were marks on her cheeks where the fingers had supported her chin.

Q.—Did you find any marks showing the use of a hypodermic needle? A.—Yes. On the right side, one-third the way down.

Q.—Any other? A.—No.

Q.—Did you find any marks indicating scars that might have been due to this practice of using drugs? A.—No.

Q.—What are the characteristics of a drug addict? A.—There is a characteristic skin condition; emaciation, loss of appetite for ordinary food, and nervousness.

McMahon, Head of United Textile Workers, Hastens to Mill City

Providence, May 29.—A possible settlement of the textile strike in Lawrence, Mass., and if there, probably throughout New England, was seen today in the hurried departure for the Massachusetts city of Thomas F. McMahon, national president of the United eXtile Workers.

McMahon left in response to a telegram sent jointly by three representatives of the mill owners and three of the striking workers, which asked him to attend a meeting in Lawrence late today "with a view to ending the strike."

McMahon said he did not believe he would be sent for by the joint signers of the telegram unless his approval was awaited for some settlement scheme.

The meeting will be between the representatives of the mill men and of the striking operatives.

2 APPEAL JAIL TERMS IN WALTHAM LIQUOR CASE

Michael Litt and his cousin, Louis Casano, of No. 55 Charles street, Waltham, appeared in Waltham Court today charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance. Both were found guilty and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction. Both appealed and were held in $500.

After Judge Abbott made his finding, Attorney Bernard Murphy, for the defendants, challenged the court to cite a case where a person was found guilty of maintaining a liquor nuisance where no liquor was found. This is the third raid made at this house. In each case the police found no liquor.

FIVE PETITIONS IN BANKRUPTCY FILED

Two creditors' and three voluntary petitions in bankruptcy were filed in the Federal Court today, the former being filed against the Marathon Cafe, Eliot street, this city, claims totaling $615; and against Samuel Gorfinkel, doing business as S. Four cows and a number of chickens perished in the flames. Remnants of mixing barrels of mash were found. Fire department officials attributed the blaze also to the stills.

AWYER FOR GIRLS IN BACK BAY REVEL SEEKS ARREST OF THREE

not come before me officially, but if a complaint is formally lodged with me I shall start at once to investigate and see whether the law has been broken.

"In any event, if a formal complaint is filed before Wednesday, when the Grand Jury convenes, I shall certain take immediate steps to present the whole matter to that body for action."

In addition to young Fitzgerald, the following are said to have been present at the party:

Ben Lipsky of May street, Abe Klein, Lr. Louis Arkin of No. 366 Commonwealth avenue, Arthur Wilson, college student, a man named Wood, and Ensigns Addis Nelson and Snyder of the U. S. navy.

Today Dr. Arkin is supposed to be out of town, according to servants at his home. Lipsky is also said to be out of town. The two chorus girls who say they were beaten up have left their room at the Brewster Hotel.

Announcement that principals in the famous Back Bay revel would be haled into court and details of the party bared followed charges of William F. Fitzgerald, Jr., banker's son, that he and others had been held up for blackmail.

"Blackmail!" said Eleanor La Sar today. "It's no such thing. All we ask is justice. The biggest surprise in her history will be given staid old Boston when Marie and I tell our story in court."

GIRLS' CHARGES.

Both girls charge they were attacked, kicked and beaten. Both had to go to a hospital.

Young Fitzgerald, Harvard student, and son of the wealthy Boston banker, in a full statement of the details of the party, said the LaVon girl, worse injured of the two, foil against a barrack and was rendered unconscious, the accident occurring after she had gone to the upper floor of the apartment with three men.

Miss LaVon charges she was dragged upstairs, her chum with her, and there assaulted.

The men alleged to have accompanied the girls upstairs are Abe Klein, Benjamin Lipsky and Dr. Louis Arkin of No. 366 Commonwealth avenue. They are said to have fled leaving the girl injured and hysterical.

The story of the party as told today revealed that 14 persons, eight men and six girls, were present.

The girls who figured in the revel were Geneva Mitchell, recently deposed member of the "Sally" company; Sylvia Kingsley, Billy Blythe and May Daw, who played the parts of "moths" in "Sally," and Eleanor La Sar and Marie Le Von, chorus girls of the "Last Waltz" company.

FITZGERALD TALKS.

Since May 17, the morning after the gay revel, it is said that there has been jockeying between lawyers on both sides as to the amount which was to be paid by Fitzgerald and the navy officers for silence as concerns the party during which two of the young women present, Misses La Sar and La Von, allege that they were lured into an upstairs room of the apartment and made the victims of a most brutal assault.

Since the affair became public, William T. Fitzgerald, Jr., and his friends have remained in seclusion, but today Mr. Fitzgerald decided to tell his story. He said:

"The party itself started at the stage door of the Colonial Theatre. There I met Arthur R. Wilson of Manchester. I was told a party was going on and was asked if I cared to join, and my answer was 'yes.'

"It was then that I was told to get two girls, which I did, the Misses La Von and La Sar, whom I kew very slightly. Ben Lipsky, who was standing by, asked if he could come along. Of course, I said 'come along.' It was at this time that Klein joined the party with another man. I believe Dr. Louis Arkin.

"Lipsky, Klein and Dr. Arkin then took the chorus girls to No. 246 Commonwealth avenue. Nearly an hour later our party came up to the house.

"The crowd which accompanied Geneva Mitchell and the three girls to the apartment was distinct and separate from the Klein-Lipsky-Arkin bunch.

"While we were all sitting down talking, a member of the Klein-Lipsky-Arkin trio became offensive in his conduct to one of the girls. I cannot recall the particular man, but I believe the girl who resented the insult was Miss La Sar.

"Lipsky af one stage of the proceedings got very angry because Miss La Sar boasted that no man of such a character could touch her. They argued quite at length.

HEARD SCREAMS.

"The next thing we noticed was that Lipsky and Klein and Dr. Arkin and the two girls had gone upstairs. Our party, that is the Geneva Mitchell crowd and her guests, remained downstairs. The only people to go upstairs were the Misses La Von, La Sar, Klein, Lipsky and Dr. Arkin.

"As to what happened up there I do not know, except that in a few minutes there were screams. Misses La Sar and La Von came downstairs in a hurry, and the clothing of one of them was dishevelled—this was Marie La Von.

"With the screaming and the women saying that they had been mistreated, Klein, Lipsky and the doctor became frightened, and left the place. This left two hysterical and crying women on our hands. Miss La Von sustained her injuries while running around in hysterical fashion. She tripped over a rug and fell headlong into the hatrack.

HIT HATRACK.

"The towel story is this. Wet towels were applied to the girls' foreheads, and a wet towel was also applied to Miss La Von's jaw, which had come in contact with the hatrack. After rendering first aid to the girls, and trying to quiet them, they were sent away in a cab.

"As to the conduct of the women, that is, these two 'Last Waltz' women, I shall say naught, for if there is one thing I believe in, it is those lines from Kipling—

"'If a woman has spoken a word, remember that thy lips are sealed.'

For the brand of the dog is upon him by whom the secret is revealed,'" said Mr. Fitzgerald.

"The unfortunate part of this affair is that three of my friends, Nelson, Wilson and Snyder, who at all times were sober and well behaved, should come in for this publicity, because intruders into our own private party really knew not how to behave. But in justice to these men, I do not believe that they made the particular kind of assault claimed by Misses La Sar and La Von."

EXPLAINS WELLS "JOKE."

"And when the time comes to fight this gang of blackmailers in court I, and, in fact, every member of my party will be able to produce sworn affidavits from the girls of our own crowd as to the truth of the affair at No. 246 Commonwealth avenue, and right here let me say the truth is not going to hurt us as much as it will some other folks, who are playing a deep game."

"While I regret the publicity of this affair more than words can express, and while not trying to defend my conduct, which has had such a disastrous ending, let me say that Miss Wells' name should not figure in this matter.

"First, last and all the time, the getting of a marriage intention certificate was a joke—a schoolboy and schoolgirl joke between us two." Miss Elizabeth Wells, daughter of Senator Wellington Wells, filed marriage intentions at City Hall Friday. This created another sensation in Back Bay and Brookline circles.

"Miss Wells is a most estimable young woman, a true blue girl, a girl of character, a girl whose name a fellow would be proud to mention—she is all that a woman should be, pure, true and amiable.

"I feel very badly that her name should have been dragged into this party story, as there is absolutely no connection between the two events, the marriage intention joke and the Mitchell party."

GIRL TELLS STORY.

Sylvia Kingsley and Billy Blythe also told today their story of what happened in Miss Mitchell's apartments on the night of the birthday party.

"After the show Geneva Mitchell, May Daw, Billy and I went to the Brunswick with three naval officers and Arthur Wilson, where we had dinner. One of the naval officers, a particular friend—his name is Addis Nelson—wanted to go to Geneva's party.

"I knew Lipsky would be there, and I didn't want to go, but Billy did, and Addis did, too, so I decided not to break up the party."

HURLED ORANGES AROUND.

"Geneva and one of the naval officers set out for her house in Addis Nelson's car. Geneva and there ahead of us and went in. Addis and I went to buy some oranges before we entered, and the rest went inside."

Miss Blythe said that while the rest were waiting for Miss Kingsley to come back, the girls went upstairs and took off their wraps. They were downstairs when Addis Nelson and Miss Kingsley returned, and Nelson threw the three dozen oranges he had all over the floor.

"But he was perfectly sober," said Miss Kingsley. "He did it for a joke. At that time he hadn't had a drink. When I got in, I went upstairs with Billy to Geneva's bedroom to fix my dress, which had come unclasped.

"This blonde girl Eleanor and the fellow they called 'Doctor' were going up the stairs ahead of us. The blonde girl turned around and asked us if we two 'kids' were following them, and I assured them we were not.

HEARD SOUNDS UPSTAIRS.

"Afterward, we came downstairs and joined our own party. There were two distinct parties there. We were not even introduced to the two 'Last Waltz' girls. While we sat there we could look into the other room, where were Lipsky, the doctor, and another fellow—

"They were in the other room with the blonde and the little red-headed girl they called Marie.

"About this time, Billy Fitzgerald came over to Miss Blythe and me. He was with us practically all evening, and I did not see him with those two girls at any time during the evening. Mr. Fitzgerald and Miss Blythe and one of the naval officers were with me in that room. May Daw was with us, too.

"All the rest of the party were out in the kitchen, where they were serving something to drink. Billy (Miss Blythe) and I never drink and never smoke, so we stayed where we were.

"As I say, we heard a noise overhead, as if somebody was wrestling. We could hear the 'red-headed Boy,' Marie, screaming. A minute later she came down the stairs.

"In a few minutes the doctor left the 'Last Waltz' girls and came over to Billy. He asked her to have a drink, and she said she never drank. A minute later the blonde came over to me and said, 'Leave him alone. I know him better than you do.'

"WENT OUT LIKE LIGHT."

"I went downstairs, still looking for my coat, and went into the conservatory in the rear of the house. There was nobody there when I went in, but the blonde girl, Eleanor, and the doctor entered a moment after. The blonde girl tripped and hit her head against something, I think it was a bookcase.

"She went out like a light—she just went cold. I got nervous and jumped up on a chair. Marie then came in with Addis Nelson, whom I was calling 'My Sailor Boy.' One of the men said, 'She's knocked out cold.' The red-headed girl was at one side and when she opened me she said, 'Who's that girl? I want to see who she is.'

"When I finally found my coat behind a door in the front entrance, the blonde girl, who had been revived, was in the next room. The doctor and the red-headed girl were sitting on the davenport. The red-headed girl was crying, and the blonde was bawling the nom out.

"'You've got a nerve,' she was sawing. 'Three men against one girl.' She must have been referring to the noise we heard upstairs. We were more anxious to get out then, when I told Billy about what I had heard. We went out with one of the naval officers, but he had not brought the key to the machine.

GIRL WAS GAGGED.

"As we started to go back into the house to get Arthur Wilson to bring us home, because he was sober, the three men came tearing out of the house, putting on their coats as they ran. They jumped into Lipsky's car and speeded away around the corner. It looked mighty queer.

"When we entered the house we saw four men carrying the red-headed girl, who was screeching and shrieking. We were so excited that we did not notice who the men were, but each one had hold of a leg or an arm. She was struggling and she had been gagged.

"There was a towel around her mouth, but I don't know who put it there. Even so, she was making a terrible noise. It looked as if she were going to make a scene, and when the boys finally dropped her she took the gag out of her mouth and let a screamin on the floor. The men just stood looking at her without knowing what to do.

"Billy and I went into another room. The blonde was in the other room. She always gets like this,' she said, but she has never been quite so bad before.'

"Then she asked us to look for the red-headed girl's pocketbook. She said there were $10 or $15 in it, but I told her not to worry, because Geneva would send it back if she found it, or would send her the money if she didn't. She was running from one room to another at this time, and didn't know what to do with herself.

"One of the naval officers came in and said, 'You girls better go.' Addis had gone out to get the car, and Geneva showed us out the back way.

"Somebody hailed what he thought was a taxi. It turned out to be a private car, and two men who were under the influence of liquor were driving it. They said they would be glad to do anything, so the two 'Last Waltz' girls got in with them and drove away.

SAID THEY WANTED CASH.

"Geneva said that Arthur Wilson did not want them to go with the strangers and said he would take them home himself, but they said they would be perfectly all right.

"After they had gone, Ensign Schneider, who is now out cruising on the U. S. Florida, Geneva and Arthur Wilson sat on the davenport and laughed. They thought the thing was all over. Geneva found Marie's pocketbook, and Arthur Wilson took it to the hotel where the two girls were staying.

"Billy Fitzgerald told me the day before this thing came out in print that the blonde and the red-headed girl were trying to make trouble, and wanted money. He said that he and all the other boys who were at the party were going to give them $200 apiece to keep the affair quiet.

"The girls wanted something around $1,000, he said, and this arrangement would give it to them. The next day, however, the papers were full of the case, and the boys decided not to give the girls a cent."

Miss Mitchell Wore "Yama Yama" Suit, Says Fitzgerald

"Let me say that no unseemly or riotous conduct occurred except the scene which was staged by the two chorus girls of the 'Last Waltz' company. Let us get straight the part played by Miss Geneva Mitchell, who has suffered loss of position.

"Geneva Mitchell at no time staged a disgraceful dance—she danced in a black satin 'Yama Yama' suit, a costume which she has previously worn at balls and dances of a most chaste character.

"The conduct of Miss Mitchell was at all times decorous, and the 'pajama shimmy' talk is all rot."—From William F. Fitzgerald, Jr.'s, story of the Back Bay pajama party.

2 GUNMEN BEAT MAN, ROB HIM OF $500

Two gunmen enticed Charles Levidis of No. 94 Stanford street, West End, into an alley off Stanford place today, put revolvers to his head, beat him unconscious and robbed him of $500.

It was ten minutes before Levidis was able to stagger up to Patrolman Di Franco and tell his story. He was taken to the Haymarket Relief Hospital. Levidis describes one man as about thirty-five years old, six feet tall, and powerfully built, and the other as about thirty years old, five feet ten inches, wearing a dark suit and dark cap.

LYNN BOY HELD IN DEATH OF FATHER

Arthur Lefevre, twenty years old, was held in $5,000 bail in the Lynn District Court today on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of his father, Arthur Lefevre, Sr., fifty-five years old, found dead in his kitchen of his home, No. 48 Pleasant street, Lynn.

Judge Reeve set the hearing of the case for Wednesday of next week in order to allow the police to continue their investigation and permit Medical Examiner Breed to conduct an autopsy.

The young man's arrest followed the receipt by the police of complaints that there had been a fight between father and son and that the older man had been killed.

Policemen found the elder Lefevre sitting in a chair in the kitchen, dead. Near him was his widow, Mrs. Mary Lefevre, Arthur, daughter, Eva, seventeen, and a younger son, Romeo, ten years old.

Arthur, the police said, was too much under the influence of liquor to be able to give a coherent account of the happenings leading up to the death of his father, and the other children were unable to tell what had happened.

Mrs. Lefevre denied that there had been any fight between her son and her husband, and declared that the death of the man was due to heart trouble from which he had suffered for several months.

She told the officers that she believed that the Donor he had taken was responsible for death.

Sam Landau of Lawrence and Bernard Santonas, the latter said to be manager of the Venitian Gardens, Salisbury Beach, were also held in $500. TAKES POISON AS HUSBAND WATCHES

Mrs. Arthur Marena, wife of a Back Bay artist, designer of stained-glass windows and architect, is slowly recovering today from the effects of poison she swallowed when her husband refused to become reconciled after a separation of six months.

Mrs. Marena called at the apartment occupied by the artist, at No. 7 Arlington street, and there pleaded with her husband to take her back. When he refused she asked him for a drink of water and swallowed it with one poison tablet.

Mr. Marena immediately notified the police and hospital ambulance and the woman was hurried to the City Hospital where first aid treatment was given and it was said she would recover.

"This is the climax of four years of married misery and misunderstanding," explained Mr. Marena after the attempted suicide of his young wife.

"Last August the separation came when I returned home one day to find a note telling me that my wife had gone to spend ten days with her father, chief chemist for a big New York corporation.

"I begged her to return. When she did so, ten days later, I forgave her.

"A little after that she left home again, and began court proceedings for separate support. I agreed to give her an allowance and have lived up to that agreement.

"Saturday night she came to my apartment from Winthrop where she had been spending some time with friends. She pleaded with me again to take her back. I did not believe she was sincere. I told her kindly that all was over between us so far as I was concerned."

Mrs. Marena is the daughter of a wealthy and prominent Medway family.

SUING COUPLE NEAR BATTLE AT COURT

Angry words, an upraised feminine fist and visions of a free-for-all between an attractive young woman and her husband, gave zest to the humdrum of the courthouse a thrill today.

The woman was Mrs. Sarah Gallagher of Dorchester. Her husband George, was sitting outside Judge Qua's session waiting for his wife's petition for support in divorce to be heard. He recently entered suit for divorce alleging desertion and asking for custody of his two small children.

Mrs. Gallagher, standing at the courtroom entrance, spied her husband. With a rush she was standing over him, arms upraised as if about to strike. Mr. Gallagher refused to get excited, and a court officer engineered a truce.

Before this episode, Bernard F. Carbin representing Mrs. Gallagher, and Attorney Jackson, counsel for the husband, had hopes of a settlement out of court.

When the husband's divorce suit is heard he will charge his wife with kidnaping their children, five and three years old. He says his wife went to a Cambridge home where he was boarding the children and took them away on two occasions. The wife still has them.

He pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,500 bail for hearing June 9. Alfred Gerding of the evidence two police officers saw two men try to start a machine and called on them to halt. Both men ran. The officers followed, shooting. One of the men was overhauled and said his name was Sullivan.

Honeymooner's Name On 2 Tablets to Dead Heroes

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 29.—If Anthony Pentola hadn't been on his honeymoon, he would have attended the ceremony held by an American Legion post in Freedom Square, Brooklyn, upon the unveiling of a monument to soldiers who died in the World War. For Anthony's name was conspicuous among those cut on the face of the marble memorial.

Two weeks ago, just before his marriage, Anthony attended an unveiling in Prospect Park. His name appeared third from the top. He tried to convince the speakers on that occasion that he was Anthony Pentola, but they wouldn't believe him and he heard how bravely he had died in France. His name is also to be found on another monument in Heiser Square, Brooklyn.

FIVE-CENT FARE APPEAL IS DISCUSSED

The plea of 160,000 Boston American readers to the State Legislature for a five-cent fare is receiving consideration from many quarters.

Mayor Curley conferred with his legal advisers at City Hall this afternoon to consider alternative suggestions that have been made to change the Mayor's bill.

Evidence was pretty plain that the Mayor will waive all suggestions to amend the bill and will stand pat in favor of his original declaration for a five-cent fare, with the deficit in operation to be borne by general taxation.

Among the alternative suggestions made are the remission of subway rentals, and relief of the car rider from paying the entire cost of street paving between the tracks and the clearing of snow from the streets.

Those proposals, it is said, might be expected to take a penny or two off the fare. They have been submitted for consideration at the legislative hearing Thursday.

The conference was attended by Mayor Sherman L. Whipple, Corporation Counsel E. Mark Sullivan and former Corporation Counsel John A. Sullivan.

"Some of the legislative leaders have already expressed themselves in favor of omitting arrearage rentals, the remission of certain specific taxes and the relief of the car rider from other considerations," said the corporation counsel. "The principle that they thereby advocate is identical with the principle advocated by the Mayor and therefore should not cause them any alarm. If that relief is granted, it would fall upon general taxation.

"It is our opinion that the general deficit would be very small. The street railway situation is picking up all over the country. The cost of materials is decreasing. A lower fare brings a greater volume of traffic, which in many instances would be sufficient to wipe out the difference between the ten and the five cent fare.

"One of the lines in New York operated on a ten-cent fare and nearly went into bankruptcy. The five-cent care was restored and the road went back to a paying basis."

INJURED MAN'S STORY CAUSES 3 ARRESTS

James Marks, twenty-seven years old, of Trenton street, East Boston, appeared in East Boston Court today charged with having morphine and cocaine in his possession. He was found guilty and given six months in the House of Correction. He appealed and was held in $1,000.

He told the court he had been a drug addict for nine years. Both his eyes were swollen and black, which he said he received at the hands of the police. Patrolman John F. Dunleavey and Daniel A. McCallum told the court that they found Marks lying unconscious in front of London Court, and his injuries were the result of a fall.

When he was being booked the officers found upon him. As a result of his condition Sergeant Patrick J. McNealey and the two officers went to London Court where they arrested Salvatore Iorio and his wife Lucy, each thirty-five years old, and Phillip Iorio, sixty-six years old, charged with being present where drugs were found. They pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued until June 9. Each was held in $1,000.

At their homes on London court, the police found five vials of morphine, three ounces of cocaine, three hypodermic needles, two droppers, one syringe, a package of cocaine and a small stove for cooking the drugs.

SERIOUS OUTBREAKS ARE REPORTED IN SYRIA

Damascus, May 29 (By the Associated Press).—Serious disorders are reported in the Lebanon and Alawite districts of Syria as the result of of the arrest of Dr. Shahbander, the Gandhi of Syria. General Gouraud, the French High Commissioner, has just arrived in Beirut from Paris and has taken personal charge of the situation, which is grave.

In spite of threats made by General Gouraud, fresh disturbances again occurred in Homs, Hama, Aleppo, Laras and Hourra, necessitating the dispatch of troops. All prisons are full of revolutionists.

Washing Won't Rid Head Of Dandruff

The only way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this for three nights running, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how stubborn dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and dizzing of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—Advertisement.

FIRE MENACES REVERE BEACH COTTAGES

The entire fire-fighting force of Revere was called out today to battle a two-alarm fire in a two and one-half story dwelling on Nerious avenue, Beachmont.

A strong off-water wind fanned the flames towards a row of Summer cottages which the firemen had hard work saving.

The house in which the fire started is No. 6 Nerious avenue, owned by Mrs. M. J. Noble of No. 145 Linden street, East Boston. The upper part of this cottage was gutted. Firemen placed the loss at $2500.

Sparks set fire to the roof of the cottage, No. 3, owned by R. Johnson of Atlantic avenue, Beachmont, and occupied by A. Neyhus and family. The damage to this building was $500. Sparks started a minor blaze on the roof of a house across the street at No. 5, but this was put out without damage. Mrs. Noble and her three sons occupied the first floor of the house where the fire started. Mrs. Noble told the police that shortly before the fire she dropped a quarter in the gas meter upstairs. She said she had scarcely returned to her own flat downstairs when there was a mild explosion upstairs which blew out the windows.

GIRLS FLEE FIRE IN SOUTH END

Many girl employes of the Levenson Bag Company at No. 237 Harrison avenue, South End, were forced to flee from flames which spread rapidly through the upper portion of the seven-story building today.

Prompt action by David Pinkos, who operates the elevator, enabled the women to reach the street in safety. Two women were working on the first flood also were obliged to hurry to the street.

The fire was discovered by a man working on his automobile in front of the building. He gave the alarm and Pinkos immediately got busy with the elevator, bringing the Levenson employees to the street. Ladder Company No. 17, although called at the scene of the fire, was handicapped in getting a ladder raised. The damage was several hundred dollars.

ATTACKS STORY OF GETTIGAN'S ACCUSER

An attempt to break down the testimony of Private Detective John P. McDonald marked the resumption today of the trial of J. Thomas Gettigan of Revere, on charges of murdering his aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cook, and conspiring for the murder of his uncle, Clinton W. Richardson.

Attorney Roscoe Walsworth, for Gettigan, subjected the detective to a gruelling cross-examination, but failed to shake his story except in minor details.

McDonald is the man who testified to three meetings with Gettigan, in the course of which the Revere grocer offered him and William Lindsay, colored, a considerable sum to do away with Richardson.

The motive for that conspiracy and for the alleged murder of Mrs. Cook, the State alleges, was to remove all who stood between Gettigan and a $200,000 fortune.

Attorney Walsworth tried to go deply into McDonald's past life today, but was opposed at every turn by Assistant District Attorney Daniel M. Lyons.

Chief of Police John J. Dyer of Revere testified that when Gettigan was arrested he smiled and took it calmly. Police Lieutenant William E. Talpan testified that Gettigan told him just before his arrest, that Lindsay, the colored man in the case, was trying to "fix him."

The lieutenant said he once answered a telephone call intended for Gettigan. It was from Lindsay, and demanded $100 hush money, indicating that the colored man "had something on Gettigan."

PRINCE OF WALES AGAIN BALKS AT MARRIAGE

London, May 29.—For the third time within a year, the announcement of the engagement of the Prince of Wales is postponed. The young Prince, who is known internationally for his congenial temperament, is not so congenial with regard to strictly domestic questions, it has leaked out.

The Prince of Wales is becoming difficult to manage with regard to the marriage question, in the opinion of official circles. He wished to put off "settling down" as long as possible.

A year ago it was supposed that the Prince was to marry Lady Rose Cavendish, daughter of the Duke of Devonshire. But he didn't.

Knowing dowagers, however, are hinting their day, and predict that, eventually, the Prince will be broken to the matrimonial harness.

FATHER FOUND TWO-YEAR-OLD BOY VERY SICK

Was Constipated, Thin, No Appetite, Had Swollen Lips, Stomach Pains

A hardy woodsman and enthusiastic fisherman of Maine, has a very interesting record to report. He writes: "As a boy, thirty-seven years ago, I began to use Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, and after six months hauling logs I came out of the woods and found my two-year-old boy very sick. He was thin, had no appetite, had swollen lips, pains in stomach, was suffering from constipation for months. "I had not been in the house an hour when an elderly lady—a good neighbor—came in and told my wife to get a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir, saying she had seen numbers of cases like mine which it relieved. "My boy was given a full dose of Dr. True's Elixir, when he passed a lot of worms, and right away began to show improvement; he began soon to eat with a relish, play around and look healthy. He did not have to take a full bottle, and in later years, whenever he got off his feed, a few doses would straighten him out quick.

"When I get constipated, a couple of teaspoons of Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, fix me O. K.

"My son is grown up now and has a family of six children, and he has practically raised his family on Dr. True's Elixir. The children go out and get hold of something not good for them, but I have to watch all the children, and so when they eat something they shouldn't and get sick, Dr. True's Elixir is given and the family is put in good shape again.

"I have read in the papers you have to take a half a dozen bottles of some remedies, but you don't have to do this with Dr. True's Elixir, simply a few doses and then, quick relief. The three generations of my family have been kept healthy by using it."

Symptoms of Worms: Constipation, offensive breath, swollen lips, deranged stomach, occasional pains in the stomach, pale face, eyes heavy and dull, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

Nearly every child and grown up needs a laxative sometime. The fiend parents safeguard the health of their children as well as their own, by keeping their bowels in condition. The herbs used in Dr. True's Elixir are imported and of strictly pure quality. No harmful drugs. Keep the bowels regular by using Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. 100—90c—$1.20.

'Convicts Get More Food Than Railway Man Under Cut'

In their dissenting opinion against a wage cut for maintenance of way railway employes, the three labor members of the Railroad Labor Board, A. O. Wharton, Albert Phillips and W. L. McMenimen, declare:

"Under the new scale the earnings of this large group of railroad employes will not provide the father of a family with as much food as is allowed convicts in the Cook County Jail, Chicago."

STABBING VICTIM DIES IN HOSPITAL

Paul Gomes of No. 77 Emerald street, stabbed in a boarding house row with two men on May 21, died today in City Hospital.

Joseph G. De Carvello of the same address was immediately arraigned in municipal court on a charge of murder. He had been under arrest since the stabbing took place.

Police are seeking Joseph Berado who also lived in the house and who disappeared following the affray.

The fight, police say, was over the affections of a woman in the house.

SENTENCED FOR BAD CHECK FRAUDS HERE

John W. Ochery, also known as John E. Walker, who by means of forged and worthless checks obtained $100 from business men in Boston, was sentenced in the Superior Court today to State's prison to from two and a half to three and a half years. He was convicted of a similar offence in Newark, his identity being established by the Bertillon system.

RAILROAD MEN TALK FIGHT ON PAY SLASH

From all parts of the country today came indications that the 400,000 maintenance of way employes affected by the drastic wage cuts ordered last night by the Railroad Labor Board would fight rather than submit.

Dissatisfaction is reported in such widely separated sections as Biddeford, Me., Boston, Chicago and Baltimore. The order affects maintenance of way all over the country.

The executive council of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes was to consider the question at a meeting in Chicago today.

B. M. Jewell, head of the railway department of the American Federation of Labor, declared that if the workers had a vote on the question the result would be rejection, flat and final. One thing that is rousing the union chiefs to opposition is the feeling that the more of last night was only the beginning.

There is a rumor that the Labor Board will within a few hours cut the wages of 200,000 clerks, 500,000 shopmen and other railway workers.

The Labor Board's announcement as to the maintenance of way employes was made in Chicago. The reductions in wages range from 5 to 15 cents an hour. They are effective July 1.

A dissenting opinion is filed by three members of the board, A. O. Wharton, Albert Phillips and W. L. McMenimen, who assert that under the new scale "the earnings of this large group of railroad employes will not provide the father of a family with as much food as is allowed convicts in the Cook County Jail."

The board calls attention to the fact that this adjustment is based on previous wage adjustments both by the director of railroads under federal control and by the railroad labor board since that time.

TRIBE OF HOTTENTOTS NOW IN REBELLION

London, May 28.—A rebellion has broken out among the Hottentots in the southwest protectorate of Africa says a Reuter dispatch from Capetown. The outbreak is attributed by the authorities to a tendency on the part of many natives to mistake kindness for weakness. The insurgent tribe, called Bondelswarts, numbers only 2,000 to 3,000. A sharp skirmish is said to have taken place between the police and a strong body of the tribesmen. Four Hottentots were believed killed and nine captured. One policeman was killed.

"I have nothing further to say, and I don't want to be bothered with questions," she added. Miss McCormick, daughter of the wealthy Harvester manufacturer, will be accompanied by Miss Julia Mangold, at one-time bookkeeper to Oser, who came from Chicago with her.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Appeal for Funds to Buy Milk for Babies in Russia

By BETTY ALDEN

FOUR million babies are dying like flies in far-off Russia—just for lack of milk. And think of the many homes in America where "extra heavy" cream is used every day, just to make the strawberry shortcake a little sweeter, or the ice cream just a little richer!

Perhaps you have never seen any pictures of tiny Russian kiddies with bodies shriveled from hunger and suffering. Not long ago I saw just such a set of pictures, and they were horrible to look at.

Possibly Mrs. Ernest Amory Codman of No. 227 Beacon street has seen such photographs. At any rate, Mrs. Codman, who has been one of the leading spirits for numerous charity projects carried out by the smart set during the past season, is sending out hundreds of letters of appeal to aid the Milk for Russian Babies Committee. Very wisely Mrs. Codman points out that the black bread which the relief administration is distributing does not touch the problem of the children, in that boys and girls who are five years old have digestions so impaired from privation that milk is the only food they can take. Her letter adds that this committee sends only child-feeding supplies, mostly condensed or powdered milk. Five dollars buys thirty-five cans of milk.

Dr. George Stewart, Jr., of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church is about to sail for Europe at his own expense as a special representative of this committee, in order to make an investigation of the whole Russian situation, particularly as it deals with the distribution of milk to starving babies.

Associated with Mrs. Codman on the Boston committee are Mrs. Leverett Bradley, Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, Mrs. Alice Movius, Mrs. Curtis Freshel, Dr. Alice Hamilton and Mrs. Edward H. James.

IT wasn't so long ago Boston was divided into two camps, that of the "reds" and that of the "yellows." Those who didn't want to vote and those who did. And the smart set, like the rest of the city, was pretty well split into two factions.

Boston womenfolk don't have to listen any more to speeches that they are not "fit" to vote, but way off in India the women are just beginning to fight for their freedom. And American women, remembering their own hard struggle of a few years ago, are interesting themselves in the problems of those women across the seas.

Next Thursday evening in Faneuil Hall, at 8 o'clock, there will be a mass meeting at which the American women, through Mrs. Gandhi, will protest the imprisonment of the latter's husband, Mahatma Gandhi, and 25,000 of his co-workers. Throughout the past season, a score of charity entertainments have been given by members of the fashionable contingent in aid of the Gandhi movement, for the latter, a movement for national independence in India, is coupled with the movement for the freedom of Indian women.

Among the smart set matrons, who are on the convening committee for Thursday's mass meeting, are Mesdames George Winthrop Lee, Alice W. Movius, Anna Peabody, Helen Peabody and Miss Edith Williams.

THOSE who follow the activities of members of the North Shore contingent will be interested to learn that Judge William H. Moore's hackney colts, by the famous stallion Marlborough, had a class to themselves at the Devon, Pa., horse show, and were voted among the best ever put into the show ring.

The Moores have a magnificent estate known as "Rockmarge" at Pride's Crossing, their Winter residence being on East Thirty-fourth street in New York. Those acquainted with the Shore and its estates know well the lovely gardens which so enhance the beauty of "Rockmarge." Several times, in passing the estate this season, I have seen numerous of Judge Moore's thoroughbreds trotting smartly up the paths which wind in and out on the green lawn of the place.

Apropos of the Devon horse show, keen interest in the horses gave way on Friday afternoon to the first whippet race in Philadelphia in twenty years. The race was won by Edward D. Morgan, Jr.'s Ask Him, with second place taken by Barberry Flyer, owned by Bayard Warren, also of Pride's Crossing. Mr. Warren, who is known along the Shore for his keen interest in sports, a few years ago married Elizabeth Sears, who shares in a marked degree her husband's sporting interests.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

Society's sport-loving contingent will make its way tomorrow to the Chestnut Hill grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club, where the nineteenth annual Chestnut Hill horse show will be held. The judges for the show are Andrew Adie, Gordon Prince, H. Nason Hamlin and Quincy A Shaw 2d.

Henry Sears has joined the Boston colony at Hot Springs, Va., where interest in riding has been stimulated during the past week by the opening of two new trails and the improvement of an old one. An unusually large number of Hub society folk have sojourned for a while at the popular Southern resort during the past Winter and this Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Hamlin and their daughter, Miss Anna Hamlin of Boston and Washington, are among the prominent folk at the capital who have been entertaining Admiral Parkenham and his staff this week.

FITCH ESTATE OF $400,0000 CONTESTED

Brother is ranged against sister, and stepson against stepmother, in a suit began today in Superior Court at East Cambridge to break the will of the late Benjamin Fitch of Lexington, for years a Faneuil Hall market man and later a real estate operator. An estate valued at $400,000 is involved.

A son, Arthur S. Fitch, forty-eight years old, is contesting the will, which leaves the bulk of the estate to his stepmother, with a considerable bequest to his own sister, Mary. He was cut off with the income of $5,000.

He wants to know: Whether his father was of sound mind when he made the will? Whether he was subjected to undue influence by his second wife, or by his daughter, Mary? And whether the will is legal.

There is an impressive line-up of lawyers. William Flaherty, former Special Assistant Attorney-General, and Daniel C. Linscott are counsel for Mrs. Fitch. Sherman L. Whipple, John J. Feeney and Jesse M. Gove are appearing for the son. The suit, which will last two weeks, is being tried before Judge Flynn.

Attorney Flaherty, in opening for the will, said that he would show that the trouble in the Fitch family arose when the son, Arthur, was married, a few years ago. After that relations were strained and visits infrequent.

He said he would show that although eighty-three years old when he died, Benjamin Fitch was of sound mind and a shrewd business man.

Benjamin Fitch married his present wife forty-six years ago, when his son was two years old, and his daughter eight.

Daniel C. Linscott, a Boston attorney, counsel for the deceased for many years, testified to signing the will.

Attorney William Flaherty then announced the proponents rested. Judge Flynn adjourned court to Wednesday, when the contestants will present their case.

The Happy Home

Its welcome shines serenely forth. From without, the gleaming window panes and hospitable doorway seem to portend the gracious greeting which awaits you. Within its walls you feel the subtle reflection of the happy lives of those who dwell there.

Silver glints from many places in living room, dining room, library and hall. In each of the bedrooms, toilet articles, candlesticks, picture frames and boudoir knick-knacks show that silver plays its part in all the waking hours of the household.

A gift of silver is always welcome in the happy home. It is both delightful and practical. There are so many lovely things made of silver that it is possible to choose a gift within the range of every purse. The same quality of metal and skilled craftsmanship are in every piece.

Our entire second floor is devoted to the display of silver. We shall be glad to have you visit it at any time. If you are not seeking a gift just now you may receive a suggestion which will be of value when next you wish to send some one a reminder of your esteem and friendship.

Merchandising Service Dept.,
Boston American, Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Whitney:

Permit me to take this opportunity to thank you most heartily for the splendid co-operation extended the Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Company in connection with their advertising campaign which started April 3.

Such co-operation is much appreciated by our Battle Creek office and we quote a paragraph received from the advertising department today. "The story and space given over to us in the Grocers' Link should help. It was certainly fine. The cut of the plant shows up well and the headline surely gets across the Krumble story."

We are glad to advise our Home Office that the Merchandising Service Department of the Boston American has rendered us wonderful service in putting the Krumble campaign over.

Yours truly,

Dear Mr. Cremmen:

With the commencement of the Spring campaign on Pippins Cigars, we take this opportunity to thank you and the Service Department of the Boston American for your superb co-operation in connection with the advertising of H. Traiser & Company and the Gold Brand Confectionery Company.

We have reference not alone to the fact that the American has co-operated cheerfully with us in the preparation of broadsides, the distribution of window display material, the routing of salesmen and other services, but chiefly to your constructive and helpful attitude in every case where we have conferred with you in the making of such plans.

Of course, where we have put the American on a schedule, it has been because of the paper itself, its circulation and its reader influence. But it was such a genuine pleasure to have found in your Service Department a willingness to go the limit in making our campaigns effective with the retail trade (as well as the consumer) that we want you to know how very much we appreciate your broad gauge attitude.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Cremmen:

I want to take this opportunity to express my extreme satisfaction over the unusual results obtained by the use of the Boston American on our recent campaign on Marksman and Manco cigars and the campaign now running on the Mozart cigar. The excellent position given all our advertisements on your sport pages has been very productive.

I also want to thank you for the service extended by your Merchandising Department. The service men have certainly placarded Greater Boston with Mozart window stickers, counter signs and other Mozart literature. The space given our products in the Tobacco Link has also been a great help. This is the kind of co-operation that makes advertising pay.

Yours very truly,

Recently the Boston Evening American published a full page advertisement written by eight leading Boston retail stores, testifying to the extraordinary returns from advertising in its columns.

Now eight other prominent advertisers have joined in writing this advertisement. The authors this time represent the ranks not only of retail stores but of advertising agencies and national advertisers as well.

Read what these advertisers know, from actual experience, about the Boston Evening American's unusual reader influence and remarkably efficient merchandising service department, which maintains intimate personal contact with 10,000 retail dealers in Greater Boston.

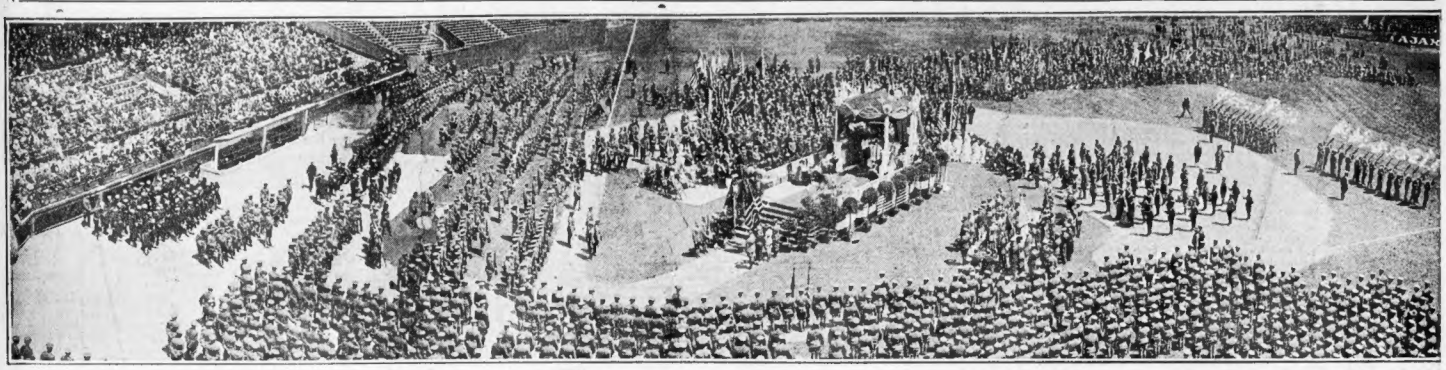
20,000 PAY TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF HEROES AT FENWAY PARK



Lest We Forget!

TWENTY THOUSAND CIVILIANS PAYING TRIBUTE to their soldier and sailor dead at Fenway Park! This remarkable panoramic photograph conveys a splendid impression of the colorful Memorial Mass attended by leading dignitaries of the State. His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell imparted his blessing on the gathering at the conclusion of the exercises. At the extreme right the firing party of the 5th Regiment, U. S. A., can be seen firing a volley. The big altar, especially designed for the occasion, is shown in the centre.

HOW SEVEN PERSONS WERE SEVERELY INJURED when the hose wagon of Engine Co. 10 crashed into a Cambridge-bound Jeffreys Point electric car at Charles and Cambridge streets. Five of the injured were firemen. The hose wagon was travelling at a high rate of speed. The fire to which it was going was negligible.

AN AIRY LITTLE fairy! 'Cause why? 'Cause she's a balloon bathing girl. Beach girls say the balloon bathing suit is the latest novelty. You walk right into the water and float amid the balloons. Maryon Aye, above, started it and she's willing that Nantasket should share the fun. She says the fad is something to blow about. Take your time!

KNICK A PRIZE NOW! The golf cuties find knickers an ideal garb for the links. At least that's the belief of Miss Rigina Croteau (at left) of No. 130 Oxford St., Lawrence, today's winner of the $5 award as Knickerbocker Girl. A check will be mailed to her. Address your photos to Pictorial Editor, Boston American.

THE SPHYNX HIMSELF WOULD HAVE RAISED cheer for this pyramid of charmers! Roxbury boasts of many excellent athletic girls, and many of them are members of various gym organizations, not the least of which is the Arbeiter Turn Verein. The photograph shows Clara Masson, "the strong girl" of the Turn Verein, holding, left to right, Katherine Kelly, Madeline Schwoern and Lisette Kohlus at the society's annual demonstration in Roxbury.

WHICH PLAYS THE BIGGEST PART IN CIVIC LIFE—THE HEALTH AND AMUSEMENT OF BALL PLAYERS AND FANS OR THE INCREASE OF real estate valuation? That's the problem that confronts the city government. The Dorchester Board of Trade has petitioned Mayor Curley to grant it a hearing to protest against the erection of rows of seats along the Bournsale street and south sides of Town Field, Dorchester, as suggested in the photo-diagram above. Residents in its vicinity declare the ball players and the stands will impair the value of their property. The youth thereabouts resent the imputation that they will draw a rowdy crowd to their games. They demand fair play in the name of clean sport. Both sides advance apparently sound arguments to support their case. What do you think about it?

GREAT WHITE FLEET

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS

ONCE more the Famous Players-Lasky studio will be on the bills as an active force in the movie industry. This plant—on Long Island—will fling open its doors on June 5th, for the first time since last Summer.

The Alice Brady starring picture, "Missing Millions," which was scheduled to be made in Hollywood, will be "shot" in the East instead. The directing, writing, and photographing squad have arrived in New York all ready to start production.

It is probable that an Elsie Ferguson feature will be made here soon, too. Miss Ferguson has not been seen on the screen since her appearance in "Forever," better known as "Peter Ibbetson." Several other stars may come East to work here during the Summer.

PLAYING SAFE.

THE modern method of "grabbing publicity" by one company who releases a picture to benefit by the publicity given that of the newer corporation is becoming something to think about. The Coogan interests, as I said in these columns last week, are buying up, as far as possible, the former versions of "Oliver Twist," that Jackie may have none of this unfair competition.

"Doug" Fairbanks

Douglas Fairbanks is taking a new precaution. He is titling his picture "Douglas Fairbanks as Robin Hood," which will ensure the public the "real thing" when the managers book the film. Too often someone scores a hit in a certain story and out-of-town theatre managers order the film by the title, too often getting another version than the one they want. This was what happened when Famous Players and Vitagraph released "The Little Minister" together.

COLLEEN MOORE IN IT

LIFE for Colleen Moore is very full these days. Since she scored a hit on the screen and has become one of the particular lights of the Rupert Hughes-Goldwyn productions, she steps from one role directly into another.

From "Come On Over," shown here two weeks ago, she went into the cast of "Bitterness of Sweets," another Hughes story, in which she is featured with Antonio Moreno. The day after she finishes work on this, she will take up her stick of grease paint in favor of "Broken Chains," the scenario that was awarded the first prize of $10,000 in a contest a few weeks ago.

WILL ROGERS COMING BACK

WILL ROGERS practically completed all plans to return to the screen while the attention of the movie world has been focussed on Valentino, Hays and the rest.

Rogers wants, he says, to film the famous "Legend of Sleepy Hollow," with himself in the role of Ichabod Crane. While Crane has more of the ludicrous than the pathos in his general make-up, the Rogers edition of the hero (?) would doubtless score.

TRICKED MISS GORDON.

WHEN you laugh at the expression on Vera Gordon's face when she gets drenched by the antics of a shower bath in "The Good Provider," now playing at the Park Theatre, don't forget that the emotion is real.

Frank Borzage, the director, played a mean trick on Miss Gordon when he assured her that they were only rehearsing the scene and that the water would be shut off, but it was in the interest of art. She approached the bath casually, turned the faucet—and had a stream of icy water shot at her. The surprise caught by the camera men is realism at its height.

TROOPS MUTINY AGAINST MANCHURIAN DICTATOR

Harbin, Manchuria, May 29 (By the Associated Press).—The soldiers of General Chang Tso-Lin along the Chinese Eastern railroad have mutinied and declared in favor of General Wu Pei-Fu, who defeated Chang in the recent battles around Peking. Almost the entire railroad is in the hands of troops who have revolted against the Manchurian dictator and are supporting General Wu, now in control in Chih-Li.

Cushing will be the speaker, with the Rev. George W. Casey of St. Joseph's Church, Malden, as celebrant.

BOTTOMLEY IS GUILTY; GETS 7 YEARS

London, May 29.—Horatio Bottomley, member of Parliament and former editor of "John Bull," today was found guilty of misappropriating funds of the Victory Bond Club, which he founded. He was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment.

The case went to the jury at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon. The jury deliberated only a few minutes before reporting the verdict. As soon as the verdict was announced the judge pronounced sentence.

While editor of John Bull, Bottomley frequently gained wide attention on both sides of the Atlantic by his bitter anti-American articles.

The Bottomley trial opened on May 15, with the defendant acting as his own counsel. The Crown Prosecutor Travers Humphreys, in outlining his case, said that the State would prove Bottomley deliberately planned to steal more than $400,000 belonging to the club.

The club had been formed to enable persons of little means to buy government bonds on the instalment plan.

Citations Fail to Save Wellesley War Veteran

John R. Manning of Wellesley was brought into the police station there for being drunk, distrubing the peace and turning in a false alarm.

"I was overseas and got one citation," said Manning, with a faint hope of leniency because of his valor when the nation was in danger.

"I was overseas, too, and got three citations," said the officer, "but duty is duty." And he stood by the charge.

A suspension of a previous sentence was revoked in Dedham District Court and Manning went to jail for thirty days.

AUTO FALLS 30 FEET; TEACHERS INJURED

Worcester, May 29.—An automobile out of control in which were two young women school teachers crashed through a fence on Beacon street today, skidded over an embankment, then rolled over and over down a steep 30-foot incline to become wrecked against a freight car in the New Haven yards.

The women were so badly hurt they are dying in the City Hospital.

They are Misses May Laughlin of No. 42 Austin street and Kate Welch of Grand View avenue.

Both have internal injuries.

It is not known how the machine got out of control. Miss Laughlin was driving. The accident was witnessed by several passersby.

On the next track to the standing freight car which halted the progress of the machine a train was passing.

Wake up your skin!

Do you know what that means? Until you do, you cannot make your skin beautiful.

Just remember this—A poor skin is merely a skin that is partly or wholly inert, asleep.

You may temporarily smooth or soften such a skin—but you cannot really improve it until you awaken it to life and health.

Don't you see why so many complexion soaps and face creams are disappointing? They omit that one vital thing.

Lifebuoy awakens the sleeping beauty that is in your skin.

It cleans and freshens the pores.

It gently awakens the inert cells.

It brings back a healthy circulation.

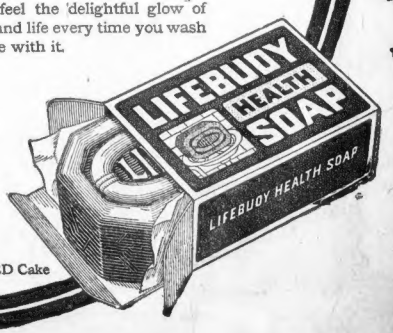
Its pure palm and cocoanut oils smooth and soften the awakened skin.

You feel the delightful glow of health and life every time you wash or bathe with it.

No other soap ever did these things before.

Try this simple, common-sense, natural way.

Wake up your skin!



The Big RED Cake

To every man and woman who wears our heels

NEVER was the need of a heel that gives real protection so great as it is today.

Standing or walking—wherever you are today—there is always an unnatural strain. Hard floors and pavements are practically universal. The body must have relief. Half an inch of heel must give it to you.

You generally pay the same for O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion Heels as for ordinary heels, though they cost the repairman more.

Although he makes less profit per pair on them, O'Sullivan's have two big advantages for the repairman: they always make satisfied customers, and satisfied customers mean bigger business.

The ordinary rubber heel is either hard and lifeless or soft and crumbly. O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion Heels combine maximum springiness with the toughness for long, hard wear.

Ask for O'Sullivan's — see that they are attached. The O'Sullivan Heel Company.

WOMAN SLIDES FOR LIFE AT NORUMBEGA

Norumbega Park is open for its twenty-sixth season. This pleasure resort on the Charles River has always been noted for its wide variety of attractions, and for the present season the management has added a number of new features.

Chief among them is the sensational slide for life, which Mlle. Mazie Lunette performes twice daily.

She is said to be the only person in the world who performs this feat, which consists of sliding down an inclined cable, suspended by her teeth.

SLIDES TWICE A DAY.

At Norumbega the cable is stretched from the top of the water tower near the restaurant to a platform on the roof of the Casino and each day at 3 and 8 P. M., weather permitting, Miss Lunette will make this perilous journey.

Her performance will take place in the open and in full view of all park patrons.

Recognizing the hold that radio has taken on the public, the officials of the park have installed one of the most complete and powerful broadcasting stations in this section of the country.

RADIO CONCERTS.

It is a product of the laboratories of the Westinghouse Company of Pittsburgh, and by means of a special system of amplification large audiences may be entertained at radio concerts each afternoon and evening.

In the mammoth steel theatre the entertainment this season will comprise feature vaudeville acts from the Keith circuit and the latest in motion pictures.

Dancing in the restaurant, canoeing and launch trips on the river, box ball alleys, shooting galleries, the extensive zoo, the Dodge 'Em and many other features will do their part toward making a trip to Norumbega well worth while. There is extensive parking space for automobiles.

GIRL HANGS SELF WHEN TOLD FIANCE IS DEAD

New York, May 29.—When Agnes Drobil, 21 years old, of No. 175 East Ninety-fifth street, learned that her sweetheart was dead in her native village in Czecho-Slovakia, she ended her life by hanging in the basement of the house.

Miss Drobil had knotted a strong piece of twine about her neck, fastened one end of it over a gas pipe near the basement ceiling and then jumped from a chair.

According to papers found in the girl's possession, she came to New York a month ago from Pittsfield, Mass.

BOYS WITH 2,890 PENNIES HELD FOR SLOT THEFTS

New York, May 29.—Two sixteen-year-old boys, their pockets weighted with 2,890 pennies which police allege had been stolen from slot machines in Subway stations, were arrested today on petty larceny charges. The police claimed that one of the lads was the leader of a gang of youngsters who knew how to work the machines.

GAUFRE silver cloth—one of the newest and smartest evening fabrics of the Paris season—is used by Carrell in a gown the sleeves of which show the mode's latest tendencies. They are designed to fall away over the shoulders and then drop in panels a little more than floor length, but a little too inconsequential to be called trains, at each side. A jeweled silver girdle is placed at the normal waistline.

LANVIN'S now famous gown worn in the French musical comedy, "La Bonche," is one of the most charming organdies the season has produced. It is of rose-mauve organdie, worn over a French blue taffeta skirt. The border of white organdie is joined by entwinations of lace and embroidery, which are used to trim the "bateau" neckline and the tiny sleeves.

BUFFALO MAYOR PAYS LIQUOR FINE

By Associated Press.

Buffalo, May 29.—Mayor Frank J. Schwab today pleaded guilty in the Federal Court to indictments for violation of the prohibition laws and was fined $500. The violations occurred before he was elected Mayor and while he was manager of the Buffalo Brewing Company.

Internal revenue penalties were settled several months ago for $9,000.

Indictments against the brewing company will not be further pressed, it was announced by the Federal attorney.

SEEK PARTY WHO LEFT BABY ON ROXBURY STEPS

Police of the Dudley street station began today a search for the person who left the body of a baby in the hallway of No. 1585 Massachusetts avenue, Roxbury, one day last week.

The body, that of a husky boy, weighing twelve pounds, had been wrapped in a number of newspapers tied with heavy string. It was first noticed late Thursday, but thought to be a bundle of laundry.

Yesterday the police were notified and the body taken to the City Hospital morgue, where it was found that the left ribs had been crushed by a kick or a blow.

REPARATIONS REPLY ON WAY; LOAN IS SOUGHT

Paris, May 29 (By the Associated Press).—A courier bearing the German government's reply to the preparations commission was on the way to Paris today. Unofficial forecasts of the answer were that it would accede to all the demands made by the commission on condition that Germany be granted an international loan.

NEGRO SLAIN AND BODY BURNED

By Associated Press.

Savannah, Ga., May 29.—William Byrd, a negro who lived near Brentwood, Wayne County, was shot to death by a mob late yesterday and his body was burned, it became known here today.

He was accused of killing B. W. Moody, a farmer, who lived near him. He also seriously wounded Browning Weaver. It was charged, and shot Carlos Moody in the arm.

The trouble is said to have developed over the arrival of a number of negroes from Macon to work on the Moody farm. Among these negroes was Byrd's wife, who insisted upon riding on the front of the truck with the driver.

She was denied this privilege and indignantly reported to her husband. Byrd went to the home of Moody, by whom he was employed, and in the quarrel that ensued the older Moody was shot and killed and the other two men were wounded. Byrd escaped into the woods, where he was surrounded with the aid of bloodhounds, and killed.

VETERANS TO APPEAR IN WORK HORSE PARADE

Over 950 prancing, stalwart and rugged steeds will be seen in line in the annual parade of the Work Horse Relief Association on Memorial Day, which starts at 9 a. m. A feature of the parade is the entry of a horse driven by Thomas McGrath, who has been a driver for forty-nine years. Another driver has a record of more than thirty years' service with one concern. In addition to a silver cup, the gift of a Boston newspaper, more than $300 will be awarded in cash prizes. Two gold medals, seven silver medals and ten bronze medals will also be awarded.

FIVE KILLED IN NEW BATTLE IN ULSTER

London, May 29 (By the Associated Press).—Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies, today told the House of Commons that Great Britain did not intend at present to withdraw all her troops from Dublin.

Belfast, May 29 (By the Associated Press).—Fighting between members of the Republican Army and the Ulster special constabulary occurred along the boundary between Counties Donegal and Fermanagh, in the Belleek district. Five Republicans are reported to have been killed and a number wounded. One constable was killed.

The fighting followed action of the Ulster police in taking possession of Belleek village and Magheross's Castle, nearby.

Special police from the Belleek Fort were ambushed and compelled to abandon their motor car, the driver of which was killed during the heavy firing.

Both wings of the Irish Republican Army, the Insurgents and those under the Free State Government, are believed to have been represented in the force which the Ulsterites encountered.

The Culling Tree road police barracks, near Falls road, was attacked this morning. Several of the police were wounded, one seriously.

Expect Agreement at Anglo-Irish Parley

London, May 29.—The Anglo-Irish conference to fix the legal status of the Collins-De Valera coalition agreement and its relationship to the Anglo-Irish peace treaty is expected to reach an agreement by Wednesday evening, Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill stated today.

The meeting was several hours late in getting started, the delay being due to the British. This gave rise to a rumor that all the members of the Cabinet were not in accord, but it was denied that there was a definite friction. Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill was hopeful that he would be in a position to announce in the House of Commons tonight that a tentative understanding had been reached as the basis for complete agreement.

Lloyd George, it is understood, is hopeful that a new Anglo-Irish agreement can be drawn up by which Great Britain is guaranteed that the Irish people will be given full freedom of choice in the forthcoming election, and furthermore is guaranteed that the Collins-De Valera agreement will not impair the loyalty of the Irish towards Britain.

It was officially stated in Downing street that the negotiations are progressing favorably, but it was pointed out that it probably would take several days to clear up the entire situation.

British Troops Will Not Take Offensive

London, May 29.—The British troops in Ulster will not take the offensive against the Irish Republicans unless the British Cabinet decides upon such action, Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill announced in the House of Commons today. In addition to the British troops in Ulster there are a number of British warships in Ulster waters.

Plea in American Gets Job for Man Who Was for Sale

John A. Quinn, sixty-eight years old, of Somerville, couldn't get a job.

He offered to sell himself for one.

His plea was printed in Saturday's Boston American.

Before the presses had stopped grinding at noon, C. G. Maguire of No. 29 Cornhill, was on the other end of the city editor's telephone.

"I'll give Quinn a job," he said. "I want a young fellow about Quinn's age. I've got an apartment house building at Geneva avenue and Bowdoin street, Dorchester. I need a janitor. The job is Quinn's. All he's got to do is see me."

There you are, John.

PASTOR ADMITS GUILT WITH WOMAN

Rochester, N. H., May 29.—The Rev. Analdo Natino, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Hampsteed, a small community near here, has been formally dismissed from that church and the ministry by the board of trustees following a confession of improper conduct with a woman member of his congregation.

Mrs. Natino, the minister's wife, has publicly declared that she does not believe her husband to be entirely to blame, and that she intends to stick by him to the "bitter end as long as he will have me."

The name of the young woman in the case, who is said to be a tall, exceedingly handsome blonde, employed as a bookkeeper in one of the Hampsteed shoe factories, is kept secret by the trustees.

"She has always had a splendid reputation up to the discovery of this most unfortunate affair," said a member of the board today, "and we do not feel that it would be fair to reveal her identity in this case."

The minister returned from the South just before Easter and preached his first sermon after his illness on Easter Sunday morning.

It was after this that he met the "woman in the case." She is said to have been fascinated with his flashing black eyes and Italian manner. He, in his turn, appears to have yielded almost without a struggle to her blonde beauty.

Their intimacy became the talk of the little town, and, according to one account of the affair, resulted in the coming of a married daughter of the minister to remonstrate with her father against his infatuation.

$25,000 LOSS IN LOWELL FURNITURE BLAZE

Lowell, May 29.—Fire which started in the two-storey frame furniture warehouse of the O. P. Prentiss Company at Nos. 37-45 West Third street, destroyed the building and more than $20,000 worth of furniture before it was extinguished today. The total loss is estimated at $25,000. There was no insurance.

ROBBERY PLOT FOILED BY LOCKSMITH

Lawrence, May 29.—Jacob Goldberg, Malden, and Morris Freedman, Wall street, Boston, were held in $3,000 and $5,000 respectively by Judge J. Mahoney in the district court today on charges of breaking and entering and possessing burglar's tools.

The men are wanted in Boston to answer a charge of defaulting on bail in the Suffolk County Superior Criminal Court. They were charged with the theft of a number of auto tires.

They were arrested here as the result of a tip from a wide-awake locksmith, who is credited by the police with having foiled one of the most brazen robbery plots that has come to light here in years. The locksmith is William H. Atkinson. Here's the story:

In the busy moments of a men's wear sale going on at the store of the Zuba Choate Company, Goldberg and Freedman removed the lock from the front door unobserved. They took it around the corner to the locksmith and a key was ordered made. The men hustled back to the store, still unobserved, and replaced the lock under the eyes of a police detective floor walker.

The plan was to return after the streets were deserted and the store locked for the night, gain entrance and rob the place. It might have worked but for the locksmith, who became suspicious.

Mr. Atkinson made the key, dropped a little gasoline into the lock, turned it over to the men and followed them. He watched them put it back, the police say.

He called the proprietor of the store that the lock had been removed and the police were notified. The men were arrested when they returned later at night and entered the store.

DISCOVER MOONSHINE IN HOT WATER BOTTLE

Westfield, May 29.—A new hiding place for moonshine was discovered by the police in a raid in the home of George Basiewicz on Free street when three pints of alleged moonshine were found in a hot water bottle. The latter was hanging on the back of a wash boiler, carefully concealed in another part of the house, the officers found two pint milk bottles filled with liquor.

THREE SOMERVILLE FIREMEN TRANSFERRED

Three officers in the Somerville fire department were transferred today. Lieutenant Frank R. Kametti of Ladder 2, promoted to captain, is assigned to the Teele square fire station, succeeding District Chief Charles F. Hathaway. Lieutenant Herbert L. Webber of Engine 1 is sent to Ladder 2. Lieutenant Webber was presented with a traveling bag. Senior Hoseman Horace W. Hutchins, Jr., of Engine 1, son of Captain H. W. Hutchins of Ladder 2, was promoted to lieutenant and will remain at Engine 1.

SEINERS SPEEDING HERE WITH MACKEREL HAULS

Halifax, N. S., May 29.—American mackerel seiners made big hauls southwest of Sambro over Sunday and a fleet of them are now racing to Boston markets with their fares.

Saturday night over six hundred barrels were taken by the seiners and last night a much larger amount was seined. The fish, which had come to within eight miles south southwest of Sambro, have been driven back to St. Margaret's Bay owing to the coldness of the waters off Halifax.

The only whole-wheat food with a delicious flavor!

Why not make your lunch hour more pleasant?

THAT intensity of purpose and sincere desire to achieve something worth while in life—which have set America in the forefront of nations—make many of us feel that there is nothing so precious as time—getting here and there in a hurry, whether it is eating or automobiling or what not.

Much like riding on a train when the speed often causes us to overlook small but important things in the landscape, so is courtesy sometimes unintentionally overlooked in business.

If you have thought of the Waldorf more as a place to secure quickly the purest and best quality food under cleanly conditions, we hope you will enjoy the efforts of all of us to make your stay more pleasant by the courtesy of good-natured, willing service.

15,000 WILL WITNESS THE B.C.-HOLY CROSS GAME

The exodus of Boston College followers began this morning and will continue until tomorrow— due west to Worcester, where Boston College and Holy Cross will clash on the Purple diamond this afternoon.

Holy Cross is represented by a team that ranks with the best in intercollegiate circles. The Purple has dropped two games only, one to Georgetown, the undefeated nine of the four Eastern Jesuit Colleges, and the other to Yale.

Boston College has the best nine that has represented the Heights in many moons, a team of heavy hitters who have in seventeen games totaled 139 runs against 49 for their opponents. In only one contest, the one with Fordham, has the Eagle failed to capture its prey, while in their second meeting Fordham was defeated, 7 to 1.

Unless prevented by a cloudburst, the contest will draw a 15,000 gate, the biggest crowd ever to witness the yearly clash at Worcester. Holy Cross is confident that it can break the Eagle's string of victories, while B. C. relies on its battery of heavy guns to batter the Purple team to defeat.

Steve Patten of B. C. has started seven times, and each time has sent his opponents down to defeat. He is in fine form for his eighth game, and is confident that the Purple batters will find him as much of a puzzle as have his other victims.

Although the Purple batters have not swatted the ball as hard or as consistently as the B. C. batters, they are none of them poor hitters. Gautreau, Gagnon, Len Dugan, Simendinger and Maguire have in more than one contest come through with hits when needed, and Patten will face men who know the game lots better than most of his former opponents.

The Holy Cross fielders are [illegible] at all interior to the Maroon and Gold. Their records show few instances of errors or poor judgment. The Boston College infield has been [illegible] unsteady since Cody's layoff, but it is likely that Boston's regular second sacker will [illegible] tomorrow.

The Maroon and Gold battery, Wilson, Dunlap and [illegible] are reliable both at the [illegible] the stick. The three [illegible] ters, Dunlap and Wilson [illegible] specialty of four baggers.

The Phillips brothers are all prepared to do their stuff [illegible] which means to field perfectly and to bat in the neighborhood of a thousand. Behind the plate, Ed is a perfect complement to the pitching Steve, while Tommy has played the third sack as well as the faultless "Sonny" Foley.

The outcome of tomorrow's game will depend in a large measure on the ability of the B. C. batsmen to keep their batting eyes clear and to hit the ball hard, as the Eagles have complete confidence in [illegible] to check the Purple sluggers. What ever the outcome of the game tomorrow, the vanquished team will have another chance on June 17.

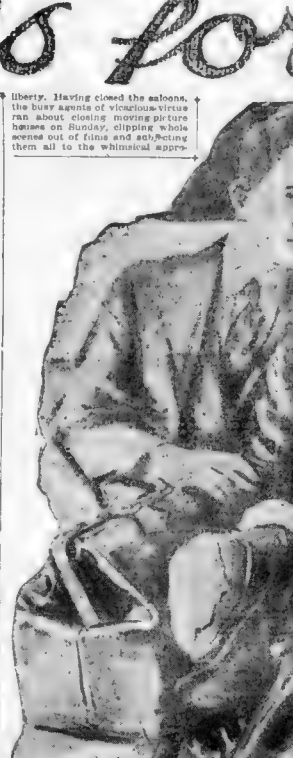
RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

THE STORY SO FAR

DESTINY had dealt savagely with beautiful young Remember Steddon, daughter of a Massachusetts clergyman. She had given her love to Elwood Farnaby, with whom she sang in the choir but he was unable to marry her, being the sole support of his drunken father's large family. Dr. Brotherick discovers there is reason for a marriage, but while he is urging this on the girl Elwood is fatally injured in an automobile accident. Elwood dies and Dr. Brotherick fixes up a yarn to tell Remember's parents. She goes to California by his advice and meets prominent movie people on the train. The train is nearly wrecked by an accident to the locomotive and has to stop in the desert. There Mem gets acquainted with Tom Holby, a movie star. She is met at Tucson by Dr. Galbraith.



It seemed vividly to Remember that her fictitious fiance sat next her. She could almost feel him against her shoulder.

ON the way back to her boarding house she noted many of Tom Holby's portraits on the billboards. He was not the star of the picture. Robina Teele was the star. Yet in one gaudy poster she covered helpless and widowed white Holby was shown fighting with a human gorilla.

He was a dance-hall girl in the Yukon, it seemed, kept miraculously pure, like a mediaeval saint amid temptations and devils. And Holby was an Argonaut who believed her innocent because he was himself innocent.

Mem felt a longing to see this picture. But Mrs. Galbraith ... not leave her for a moment. ... night was prayer-meeting ...

In Illinois, a religious community forbade the teaching of the atheistic idiocy concerning the roundness of the earth and its revolutions about a distant sun. No lie was ever too ridiculous or vile, no slander too vicious, no invention of human rights too outrageous, for those who pretended that they were saving souls.

And while the moralists were denouncing the moving pictures for their wickedness, the critics were despising them for their triteness. But Mem was neither moralist nor artist; she was a young woman watching an epic unfolded.

She was seeing Tom Holby risk life and limb in the defence of beauty. She was seeing chivalry defying the cruel North and glorifying womanhood with knightly reverence and service.

There was something Homeric in the plot, if one could forget its age. In Homer's work a war was waged for a woman, and women walked through all the pages—the ox-eyed, the laughter-loving goddesses and their shining daughters. Helen and Iphigenia, Cressida and Andromache, Nausicaa and Penelope!

Soul Was Young

In a later day, Vergil would show a hero who ran away from a languishing queen, but Homer's warriors fought for women. Where Vergil began, "I sing of arms and a man," Homer cried, "Sing, Goddess." The Greek tragedies and comedies were about women. The mediaeval romances concerning them, the plays of Shakespeare, Racine, Moliere, and all the others devoted themselves to the woman problem. Even Dante celebrated an ideal townswoman, and the most poignant scene in his "Inferno" was the coupled tragedy of Paolo and Francesca da Rimini. Sex had always been, as it must always be, the main theme of nine-tenths of fiction. To attempt to letter its discussion was only to emphasize it by repression and change the symbols without altering the meaning.

Mem's soul was young; it still inhabited the golden age of opposite, simple, direct anxiety of sex for sex was new and wonderful to her. She was astounded at the courage of Tom Holby. It wrung her heart to see him plowing across white Saharas of snow, to see him challenge the bathroom bully and beat him down and stand, torn, bleeding and panting, over him. It melted her heart to see his tenderness with the girl, the waif of fortune, whose indomitable purity had withstood years of life in a gambling hell.

Being a woman, she was not quite convinced of Robina's superlative saintly innocence, but she had no doubt of Tom Holby as Galahad. And when he begged the soiled love of the Klondyke to honor him with marriage, Mem wondered if such a parfait gentil knight might not be waiting somewhere to rescue her from ignominy to bliss.

When the picture was passed out upon Tom clenching Robina to his big chest, and the lights went up in the theatre, revealing an Arizona audience instead of an Alaskan solitude, she sighed and rose to face her lonely boarding house.

As Mem went slowly out with the straggling crowd she was overwhelmed with a loneliness for life, for love, for some one to fight for and uphold her in the deep waters; and then for a taste of the spiced wines of romance.

She cried aloud in the silence of her room for Elwood Farnaby to come back and help her, to come back and claim his right to the splendor of existence. Grief sprang at her like a puma leaping down from a tree and tore her with claws of anguish, set fangs to her heart and shook it.

In her room as she took off her clothes with listless hands she remembered her parents. She had not written to them for two days, and she had not carried Mr. Wood's fee forward.

She sat down and began a letter. Everything she could think of to write involved some difficulty. She described her arrival at Tucson, her surprise at being met by Mr. and Mrs. Galbraith. She squandered reckless praise of her father for his ever-watchful protection and the comfort of feeling that he and his prayers were always on guard. She praised the Galbraiths for their thoughtful attention.

Then she flung the pen down in disgust at the hypocrisy of her words and in revolt at the deep damnation of her whole plan. But rebel as she would, she must go on. She could not turn back now. One thing was certain—she must free herself from the Galbraiths, she must get out of Tucson. She must become Mrs. Woodville at once.

Would Not Wait

Life would not wait for her. She was like a serial writer at whose shoulder a nagging editor stands insisting. She was like Dostoieffsky sick and confused, but unable to escape the necessity for filling the pages of the little journal run, unable to recall any written page since it was printed almost before the next was written. And he title of her serial was also Crime and Punishment." Her crime was not ruthless murder, but reckless creation. She had not driven an old woman out of the world, she was reluctantly dragging a child into it, yet society was as eager to find her out and disgrace her as the slayer.

For a night and a day she paced the jail of her room and beat her brains against the iron bars of her problem. She could not break through. She could not worm her way through. She had no imagination, no inventiveness. She was just an ordinary girl who wanted to keep from hurting anybody and was finding it mighty difficult.

She was tempted to send Doctor Brotherick a confession of failure and ask him to revise his continuity, but she was afraid to face the telegraph office with such a message and afraid to have it received at home. She dared not wait a week for a letter to come and go, and, besides, her author was at such a distance that he could not understand the emergency. It is well for authors to keep in close touch with their plays and pictures in the making.

A Bit of Luck

She would probably have given up trying if a bit of luck had not befallen her. It was her habit of mind to credit it to a relenting Providence. When things went wrong she blamed herself; when they took a turn for the better she blessed Heaven. She saw divine purpose in the very bungling of circumstance that kept her frantic with uncertainties.

On the fourth morning of her supreme Mrs. Galbraith rode over in haste and distress to explain that her husband and she had to leave Tucson for a few days to attend his father's funeral. She promised to hasten back, and begged Mem Steddon for forgiveness for deserting her.

Mem was not quite sure that Heaven had slain the elder Mr. Galbraith just on purpose to help her out of her difficulty, but she had a hard time to keep Mrs. Galbraith from realizing how glad she was to be rid of her and her husband.

And as soon as Mrs. Galbraith had gone, she assailed her problem with a new ardor. It was plainly a time for a quick and decisive action.

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

Will Summer dullness be avoided this year?

There are indications both in the business world and in the security markets that it will.

* * *

Increased extra, resumed and initial dividend payments are likely to come to the front before long and continue to be a stimulating influence during the entire second half of the year. Last week brought several minor (yet significant) developments of this nature. If this forecast is fulfilled, the effect will be quite pronounced, on both business and securities.

* * *

Mergers promise to play quite a part in fostering bullish sentiment, particularly in the stock market. The indications are that we shall see railway mergers, mining mergers, steel merger, automobile mergers, oil mergers, banking mergers, rubber mergers, sugar mergers—indeed, few divisions of activity are likely to be overlooked.

* * *

What of actual developments? Here are a few:

Railway car loadings increased and idle cars decreased.

Several automobile companies broke all previous records for production and sales—General Motors reported that its April sales just missed constituting a new high record for any month in its history, and May is doing still better.

Rather unexpectedly, the local Federal Reserve Bank issued statistics showing that department store sales last month broke all records, a fact not wholly vitiated by the circumstances that Easter was quite late this year.

Augmentation of 14 cents for copper was reported at the close of the week.

Crude oil prices advanced.

Steel output and orders were declared by leaders in the industry to be surpassing expectations.

* * *

British, French, Italian and other foreign exchanges displayed strength.

Responsible financial interests were greatly encouraged by intimations that a huge loan for Germany may be found feasible.

The Bank of England's reserve touched a new maximum for the year.

It will be prudent to act on the reasoning that we are moving toward better times.

Wall St. Gossip

CALCULAGRAPH COMPANY'S president, Henry Abbott, says reports from its correspondents all over the country show business betterment.

HYDRAULIC STEEL CO., has made application to list 150,000 additional common shares on New York Stock Exchange, without nominal or par value.

H. H. FRANKLIN MFG. CO., begins today to increase its output. From 45 to 50 Franklin cars will be produced daily, and May will break all previous delivery records.

GREAT NORTHERN directors will take up the 1922 dividend question at their annual meeting, tentatively set for June 20.

STROMBERG CARBURETOR returns show a net profit for the year's first quarter of $30,266.

STANDARD OIL issues' strength reflects big demands for refined products, especially gasoline, which is this year expected to break all records.

CZARIKOW-RIONDA CO., finds estimates still conflicting as to probable size of U. S. beet crop, but look for 720,000 long tons as against 911,461 in 1921-1922 season.

MUNDS & WINSLOW look for "railway consolidations and mergers to exercise a further stimulating influence upon this class of stocks."

FEDERAL SUGAR REFINING CO., looks for a Cuban crop of about 3,742,000 tons. Exports so far have been less than half those of the same period last year.

PRESIDENT VAUCLAIN of Baldwin Locomotive Works says: "Prosperity is returning rapidly. We had 26 per cent. of unsigned business for the year in February. Today we have 82 per cent."

MEXICAN PETROLEUM and Pan-American directors are to meet for dividend consideration. It is understood the present dividends will be maintained indefinitely. Earnings have been increasing month by month, it is stated.

Rails and Oils Lead Lively Market With New Highs; Call Money, 4%

COPPERS MAKE YEAR'S MARKS IN NEW YORK

There was a strong tone in the New York market all through the day, profit-taking bringing a semblance of irregularity in some issues toward the close.

Record highs were made by Coca Cola, up 1 at 64¾, Phillips Petroleum up 1¼ at 55, and Producers' & Refiners' up ⅝ at 47⅝.

New highs for the year were made in the afternoon by Willys-Overland, common and preferred; American Sugar, American Linseed, American Tobacco B, Baltimore & Ohio, California Petroleum, Goodrich Rubber, Martin Parry Corpn., Wheeling & Lake Erie, common and preferred; Tobacco Products, Republic Steel, Southern Pacific, Pere Marquette and North American.

In the earlier trading new tops for 1922 were made by National Enameling, Anaconda, Utah, Chino, Inspiration, Kennecott, Ray Consolidated, Martin Oil, Famous Players, Hydraulic Steel, Punta Alegre, Reading, Chesapeake & Ohio, American Sumatra, Lehigh Valley, Retail Stores, Atlantic Gulf, American Ship & Commerce, American Petroleum and Pan American.

Railroads and oils led the list to a higher level today, together with the copper group, which haven't looked better at any time this year.

MORE WAGE CUTS.

Specialties in a wide range also responded to the bull urge.

Railroads were bought not only on the strength of better earnings and generally improved business conditions, but also because of the $46,000,000 wage slash affecting 400,000 maintenance of way laborers though this had been expected and discounted to a certain extent.

The rails are also bullish on the intimation that further wage cuts are coming among other classes of employes.

Coppers lifted on the rising price for the metal and also on the belief that the contemplated big German loan will improve the foreign market for the output of this industrial group, where activities have already been renewed on a growing scale.

The strength of Martin Parry was attributed particularly to the company's requirements for automobile bodies, which showed a steady increase.

Railroad stocks gradually moved into line with the day's demand for them increased. Baltimore & Ohio crossed 50 for the first time in over two years. Its previous high point for 1922 was 49¾; for 1921 its best price was 42⅜, and for 1920 was 49¾.

Likewise, St. Louis & Western was a strong feature in the low-priced rails, on reports that the road had passed the full test for earnings requirements in the first four months of 1922. At 29¾ this stock showed an advance of two points for the day.

SUMATRA SLIPS BACK.

Denial of reports that American Sumatra Tobacco Company is to be merged with other tobacco companies led to liquidation of that stock on a large scale and the price declined from 47 to 44⅜ and later recovering to 46.

Tobacco Products sold beyond 80 for the first time this year, and Retail Stores making a new high at 71¾.

Both of the listed Standard Oil stocks were active at higher prices, the New Jersey issue selling 3 higher at 192⅝, and the California stock over four points higher at 240. Atlantic Refined and Mexican did were in demand.

It was stated that the Midvale-Republic-Lackawanna merger would assuredly be consummated at prices which would assign to the Republic shares a value of $2.50 and of Midvale 44 to 46. Based on earnings of over a ten year period, it is figured that the consolidation of these three companies should earn at least $6 annually for the common stock.

Rubber stocks made more headway in the market. United States Rubber was the leader of this group at slightly lower than the high level for the year.

North American made a new high at 66⅝, a gain of over 2 per cent. from the January low.

MRS. FRANK WILKIE, of Syracuse, N. Y., formerly matron of the State Reformatory at Industry, N. Y., who says she is delighted with Tanlac since it restored her health after she suffered eight years.

"This is the first time in eight years that I have been free from stomach trouble and it is all because of the wonderful good Tanlac has done me," said Mrs. Frank Wilkie, 239 Cedar St., Syracuse. Mrs. Wilkie formerly resided in Buffalo and for two years was matron of the State Reformatory at Industry, N. Y.

"I was eating scarcely enough to keep alive," she declared, "for I would rather not touch a bite than suffer the misery I knew would follow. Even sweet milk disagreed with me. I was sick in bed for two and three days at a time, and gas on my stomach made such awful pressure on my heart it almost cut off my breath. I had horrible dreams at night and in the morning was all tired out.

"Well, the longest day I live I will praise Tanlac, for my improvement has been simply remarkable. I have no more heartburn, my appetite is wonderful, I can eat most anything I want, and my sleep is sound and restful. I am a changed woman altogether since Tanlac has proved so wonderful."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

FOREIGN TRADE OF U. S. GAINS GREATLY

Washington, May 29.—More than $3,131,600,000 worth of raw materials and manufactured goods were sold to foreign countries by Americans in the last ten months, according to an official statement of the Department of Commerce.

Exports totaled $321,000,000 in April, the statement showed, or 53 per cent more than in April, 1914.

The American export trade at present is being conducted on a scale approximately twice as great as that of the pre-war period, Government officials describe this as gain.

They emphasize that all worthwhile comparisons of the trade of 1923 with other years must be made on the basis of pre-war exports rather than upon the years of the war period and immediately following the armistice. Prices, they point out, have fallen tremendously since 1920 and world conditions have changed.

On this basis, American export trade is now enjoying an unusual growth, although the value of the April export trade was slightly below that of March. Returns for May will show an increase over April, officials say.

WHEAT SWINGS UP IN CHICAGO MARKET

Chicago, May 29.—With deliveries on May contracts less heavy than has been the rule of late, the wheat market took a decided upward swing. Talk of Germany getting a billion dollar loan tended also to encourage bull sentiment. The opening was lowered by a rise all around, which carried May to 1.29 and July to 1.23⅝.

HOPEFUL TONE IN INDUSTRIAL CIRCLES

This week finds the industrial situation of New England little changed as compared with a week ago, but with a feeling in the air that something important is about due to happen.

The various strikes, which have paralyzed cities and towns from the southernmost tip of Rhode Island to the industrial centres of New Hampshire and northern Massachusetts, are still dragging, but opinion is general that they must end soon. Lawrence, always the storm centre when industrial strife is what is forward, reflects this general feeling. There are all sorts of activities afoot for this week. Big union heads and big mill men will be in the city. So will a representative of the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation. He will make another survey, and probably more overture to the warring factions.

Pawtucket, R. I., May 26.—Friends of the textile strikers have about abandoned their plan to erect a city of tents on the banks of the Blackstone for strikers' families, and cheat the rent hogs. Despite the length of the strike the mill hands like it fairly prosperous, and say they will be able to pay house rent even if the strike lasts until Winter.

Lawrence, May 29.—This will be a week of important developments in the mill strike situation, the wise ones say. One big mill is said to be ready to make substantial wage concessions if the strikers will come back. Several big union chiefs will be in the city this week as well as a member of the State Arbitration Board.

Lowell, May 29.—Machinists, carpenters and electricians have returned to work in the Bay State Cotton Corporation mill, following a strike. Officials of the Hamilton Manufacturing Co. say 1,400 of the 2,200 strikers there have also gone back.

Fall River, May 29.—The annual pow-wow of mill heads and union heads over wages will not be held this year, because of the condition of the industry.

Memories That Bless And Burn

Comes again tomorrow the day richly laden with memories—memories that, as the old song puts it, bless and burn; memories which we cherish the more because of their association with achievements and traditions that challenge and rebuke our backsliding.

It is a sacred and chastening circle—that which brings 1776 and 1922 face to face, as it were. The beginnings of our democratic republic, and this, its latest day of blessing, burning memories.

Columbia surveys the record of 146 years and recalls the victories won and the progress made, in war and in peace, toward establishing on this continent a nation born in ideality and rooted in righteousness.

Memorial Day was originally set aside to commemorate the heroic dead of the sad period of 1861-'65, whom now a united nation gratefully honors.

The custom is growing to recall on this day those who have fallen in all the other wars of our nation. Columbia regards with maternal pride the long roll of honor begun in the throes of revolution and ended, we hope forever, with the cataclysmic horror of the Great World War.

All these memories are precious to our people. They bless us with the knowledge of the glories won for our flag upon the battlefields and the substantial victories of peace achieved in science and invention, in industry and commerce, in morals and in art.

These sacred memories burn as well as bless, because—in the solemnity of this day—we are aware of shortcomings and of falling away from those lofty standards of ideality, and from that high and holy enthusiasm for democracy, which, in the days of 1776, launched our nation upon the most significant spiritual enterprise in all history.

Memorial Day invites this backward look, that we may get from departed time the blessing which burns and healthfully sears.

Let this retrospective glance serve also to give us the sense of direction and of right tendency, so that, as God was with our fathers, we also may be with Him, working in the spirit of that Justice which alone exalteth a nation.

The Cost of Idleness

Other Things, Here and There

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

What does idleness cost the world? Men, busy killing each other in war, have since been idle in millions. You notice that in Europe there are four millions idle only, fewer than in the United States alone.

According to the Genoa conference the idleness of man has already cost the world in lack of production twenty thousand million dollars, almost enough to pay the war debt of the United States. Besides, five thousand millions have been paid out by governments to the unemployed to keep them quiet. War is expensive, while it lasts, and after it ends.

Mr. Insul of the Chicago Commonwealth Edison Company has the greatest electrical power outfit in the world, more than Niagara Falls. Eight hundred thousand horsepower available. That seems gigantic and is. Once an elephant hitched to a log in Asia seemed equally gigantic.

Before long there will be power obtained direct from the sun, or by releasing atomic energy that will make Insul's eight hundred thousand horsepower plant look like a mouse compared to a locomotive.

But Insul, if then alive, will probably try to be the head of the biggest.

Man remains about the same, but still bosses nature and science.

Samuel Untermyer suggests that this country imitate countries in Europe, and compel a man accused of crime to submit to examination and answer questions as a witness against himself. Here we take the ground that a man cannot be forced to incriminate himself, therefore cannot be forced to testify against himself. We even excuse a man's wife from testifying against her husband. The change that Mr. Untermyer suggests would be a radical one. And, anyhow, how are you going to keep a compulsory witness from committing perjury?

A man who will steal a million dollars from his own government in war time, wouldn't hesitate to lie about it after the war. The old method was to apply the torture to witnesses, even when they were innocent and accused of nothing. We have outgrown that.

Twelve Hours in Steel Mills

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Mr. Harding has steel chiefs to dinner and urges them to cut out the twelve-hour day in the steel industry.

Mr. Gary appoints a committee to investigate the possibility of the change, the chiefs having agreed that the innovation is desirable "if and when practicable."

It will be nice if Mr. Gary and the others can find it "practicable" to reduce below twelve hours the deadly toil of men at the steel furnaces. It has not proved "practicable" up to this time in spite of strikes and repeated exposure of the severe conditions under which these men work.

It is solely up to Mr. Gary and his confreres. They have prevented the formation of labor organization in the steel industry, so the men cannot fight for themselves.

The Federal government cannot help them, for successive Supreme Court decisions—the latest the one annulling the Federal Child Labor law—have declared that the States alone can regulate working conditions in industry.

The States cannot help in reducing the twelve-hour shift in the steel business, for the Supreme Court has declared State laws limiting the hours of men's work to be unconstitutional because such laws interfere with a man's free right of contract. His right to contract to burn up his manhood in a few years of intensive work because he can get employment on no other terms! A precious right! It is like the precious right of the children of Alabama to work eleven hours per day in cotton mills, a right restored to them by the Supreme Court a few days ago.

The Child Labor law annulment and the twelve-hour incident both occurring within a week, remind us that we need a constitutional amendment empowering the Federal Congress to pass protective laws for industrial workers, young and old.

Beauty Unadorned

Why should unintelligent censors at our beaches be so prudish these days when beauty almost en unadorned walks the streets of the city? I will wager that the crowd of spectators at Revere and Nantasket is much smaller this Summer. "Publicity"—etc. AN OBSERVER.

Seek Conventions

Boston should become the great convention city of the country, it now has many organizations meeting here in the Summer, whose members enjoy the beaches and visiting the many historical spots, but more could be brought by a systematic campaign. CLARENCE F. DOWD.

Women Jurors

Editor Boston American:

Another argument for women jurors is found in the case of Rev. Charles R. Carlton of Mars Hill, Me., who committed suicide following a false accusation by a hysterical girl. She was morally guilty of murder.

The woman law-breaker will get her just deserts when she is tried by her female peers. No sentiment will prevail.

City Tennis Courts

Editor Boston American:

I have written Mayor Curley regarding the Park Department and the Franklin Field tennis courts. The department claims they cannot be put in use until a wire fence is erected. The contract will not be completed until July 1. Meanwhile this recreation ground is unavailable to those who want to play the game.

I cannot conceive of anything that is more disappointing than this condition. I know that I speak the feelings of hundreds of others who would use these tennis courts when I say that the negligence on the part of the Park Department or whoever's negligence it is, is nothing short of ridiculous.

Child Labor

Editor Boston American:

That children should work and drudge for a living in mines, factories and sweatshops is a national disgrace. Child labor! The very term is a paradox; it is a mockery of true civilization. In all the length and width of this broad land I know of nothing so pitiable, so utterly detestable as a factor of our commercial life as child slavery. If the churches and government can't stop or prevent commercializing little lives into blood-stained dollars for the rich to live in luxury by, then civilization is a failure.

DO YOU REALLY LIKE THE VERY LATEST THING

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

ARE you a faddist even among fads—hospitable only to some of the new claimants for your acceptance or support, and hostile to others?

Do you really like the latest? Are your mind and spirit actually receptive to innovation? Are you always open and eager for new truth?

When you buy your newspaper, you want the latest. Yesterday's is stale and unacceptable to you. Indeed, you must have even the later edition of the afternoon or evening paper, lest you miss something.

When you look for novels (the very word suggests something "new!") you must have the latest thriller to read and to discuss. And yet the practice of Ralph Waldo Emerson still suggests a good example to follow. Whenever a new novel came out, he used to pick up and read an old one.

Unless you are among the distinguished few, who have not lost the use of their legs or the courage to take train or trolley for purposes of locomotion, or you are of those who even dare to be seen behind the vanishing horse, when you want a new automobile you must certainly have the very latest.

All modern conveniences—and nuisances—must be assured you before you will buy or build a house or rent an apartment, and be ready to rent it as livable, and willing to sing therein "Home Sweet Home." And yet, be it ever so humble, it is simply old-fashioned Love that makes the happiness and not modern improvements.

Even in organizing your business or your office, you seek all the latest methods and appliances in your quest of efficiency, more concerned over all the mechanical equipment and the mechanizing of all the force than eager for the full utilization of brains and personality.

However, as soon as you approach the realm of pure, creative spirit, you will find that, even in our novelty-seeking times, people are prone to lose their hunger for the latest.

In this sphere of human interest, the established order and its hosts of devotees are discovered to be, everywhere and always, offensively on the defensive. Here we want anything but the latest.

Seer, scientist, social reformer, philosopher, poet, painter—all these media and mouthpieces of man's creative spirit—must struggle and suffer and fairly fight their way, past indifference, unfaith, ridicule and persecution, in order to win attention to their latest word.

For man has not yet learned to respect his creative capacity, and to live in an attitude of eager expectancy towards his spirit.

Especially in the sphere of religion—where, in the last analysis, each of us is a church of one member, and where, imaginably, we would be most eager for every latest discovery, guess, or speculation—you can confidently count upon at least the indifference of the mass of men and, alas, upon the cynical hostility of the official defenders of the older forms of faith.

Some years ago, President Eliot of Harvard made a notable contribution to America's spiritual self-expression with his famous essay on "The Religion of the Future." For his evidently sincere and scientific, rational and reverent statement, he was severely castigated by more orthodox pens and tongues.

A little later, the noted novelist, Winston Churchill, spoke with obvious sincerity and keen intelligence on the influence of science and democracy upon the enlightenment and enlargement of our religious life. As a result, he was officially rebuked for his presumptuousness in darfing to think and to speak upon such matters, which presumably are not in need of the latest light.

Now, you are not bound to agree with these adventurers in the realm of soul. But clear and mind and spirit should be eager for their latest word. The days of revelation are not past.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

TODAY is your birthday you are the type of person whose life may be ruined by success. You are magnetic and resourceful and you have the dangerous power of being able to extricate yourself from the most difficult situations with little or no effort, and even when you cannot get yourself out of a scrape you usually find it easy to secure help through diplomatic intrigue.

Today is one of general uncertainty. Luck will be better in the evening. Avoid dealings with women.

A child born today will be inventive and original, but dull at school.

Famous persons born today:

TODAY:

Patrick Henry—statesman.

Ebenezer Butterick—originator of patterns.

Joel Benton—author, essayist.

Stephen A. Forbes—naturalist.

ARE YOU MENTALLY LAZY?

Ever really tried yourself out by undertaking something which is out of your general routine and which would necessitate a lot of thinking and planning on your part?

You have probably avoided anything of this sort, because you have wished not to work hard in a mental way.

In some deals you have been in it might have saved you some money if you had given personal serious thought to the matter instead of letting others do your thinking.

If you had used your own head you might have figured out a way to save at least a part of what was lost.

The little thought you did give to the matter was more in the way of cussing yourself for being a fool and investing in the wrong proposition, instead of figuring some way to save your investment.

This is due largely to mental laziness.

It is hard for you to think outside of your particular line—you won't do it—then lose, if you are so pig-headed.

Better bring yourself down to hard facts; look yourself in the face; you won't like the truth, if you are honest enough with yourself to recognize it.

Begin NOW to use your head.

CAPTAIN ROBERT DOLLAR, the Pacific Coast shipping magnate, worth anywhere from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000, dropped in on MAYOR CURLEY last week. It is expected that he will start in Boston a vast lumber plant on the Calf Pasture land, South Boston, which the Mayor is very desirous of developing.

MISS ANNIE MERRILL of Watertown is to quit the State Department of Public Welfare after thirty-two years of continuous service. She will soon preside over her own home.

"Our children are compelled to go to school, are they not?" said REPRESENTATIVE SHATTUCK to MAYOR CURLEY. "Not if you don't have them," said MAYOR CURLEY. MR. SHATTUCK is a wealthy bachelor.

Have you given it the "double O" yet? It rens as smooth as silk. Brand new. Can be seen most any day at City Hall. Its number is 350. Occupant — MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY. It has got "Sweet Adeline" beat a mile, and "Liberty Bess" is now among the also rans.

The ten national banks which brought suit against the city of Boston to recover more than $7,000,000 in taxes paid on stock will have to fight for it. MAYOR CURLEY thinks that even a settlement of something over $2,000,000 is altogether to much to pay. The City Council has already appropriated $50,000 initial expense to see the battle started.

LIEUTENANT - GOVERNOR ALVAN T. FULLER has set gossip at rest as to his future plans by taking out papers for renomination. But if GOVERNOR COX and ATTORNEY-GENERAL ALLEN get into a bitter fight against each other, Mr. Fuller may yet decide to be a candidate for Governor.

CITY COUNCILLOR WILLIAM J. WALSH is a strong booster for DR. DAVID J. JOHNSON, institutions commissioner. The councillor, together with other member. of the Council recently made an inspection trip to the Long Island Hospital, and all were agreeably surprised at the many changes made there by DR. JOHNSON.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON SUCTION FALLACY

By Garrett P. Serviss

FROM Berkeley, Cal., comes a call for help from a man who says he has been unable "in a heated argument" to convince his opponents, all members of a motorcycle club, that when the piston in the cylinder connected with the flutter-valve is drawn downward, causing a lower pressure in the cylinder, the air outside, having a greater pressure, pushes the valve open and rushes in to fill the partial vacuum formed behind the retreating piston.

His adversaries maintain that the motion of the piston creates a "suction," which pulls the flutter-valve inward, and so opens the way for the air to enter. The torridity attained by the argument is indicated by the correspondent's statement that he writes in pencil because there is no ink at hand, and he doesn't want to lose a moment in getting the subject up for adjudication.

Energy Not Wasted

The energy expended in getting warm over such matters is not wasted. On the contrary, if arguments of the kind were more common there would be less waste of energy and of money upon futile "inventions," or machines that won't work.

As far as mere riding on his motorcycle is concerned, of course it doesn't make any difference whether a man believes that the flutter-valve is actuated by "suction" or by atmospheric pressure; but it makes a very great difference if he wishes really to understand the working of the mechanism, or if he is going to try to invent something himself.

The correspondent who says despairingly that he "has run out of proofs in trying to explain that so-called suction is only a movement of air caused by a difference in atmospheric pressure, and that the force to open a valve is caused by pressure outside the valve and not suction inside the valve," is clear-headed and right in his contention, and one may well hesitate about attempting to produce any more convincing arguments than he has already put forth without producing the desired conviction.

The difficulty may lie in a false conception of the nature of suction. People are apt to think that suction is itself a kind of force, a notion that arises from the muscular movements of the lips and mouth in the act of sucking. If you purse up your lips, making a round hole for the air to enter and at the same time by an instinct acquired in babyhood, expand your lungs and air passages, this makes room for the outside air to crowd inside by virtue of its constant pressure, which amounts to nearly fifteen pounds per square inch over the whole surface of the body. The expansion of the cavities within reduces the pressure there, and the air rushes in to restore equilibrium.

Pressure the Cause

You will find that you cannot make the least effort at "suction" without expanding the lungs by means of the muscles of the chest and diaphragm, and that this expansion is the first step toward the indrawing of air, which for such indrawing is possible without the expansion, with which the lip and mouth muscles have nothing to do except preparing the way for the air to come in when room has been made for it.

So strong is the innate impression that the mouth "sucks in" air or liquid by means of muscular force that it may require a little training of the critical powers to detect the true nature of the act. It is the inside muscles that do the effective work by enlarging the atmospheric cavities within the body and thus decreasing the pressure there. Pressure is the cause of all the phenomena that are described by the word suction.

Medbury Says

Prohibition Has Made More Men Thirsty Than All the Pretzels in the Country

By John P. Medbury.

Statistics show that there are thousands of illiterate people in the United States, but some of the large bakeries are helping to educate them by baking alphabetical pretzels.

Several college professors have left the universities and are busy twisting pretzels into the English language.

It's only in the last few months that the bakeries have been hiring men of letters.

These alphabetical pretzels will help teach men to talk while they're drinking.

Still, when a man drinks he usually talks too much anyway.

And he doesn't need any baker to twist his words for him.

A French baker started making these American alphabets and they were coming out of the oven with an accent.

Some of the pretzels are so small that the guy who baked them must have been tongue tied.

And others are so out of shape that the guy who made them probably stuttered.

It's getting so now that a baker can't get a job if he has an impediment in his speech.

These fellows work on a commission basis. You can't bake pretzels on a straight salary.

This baking concern also makes pretzels in the shape of fish. The idea is to eat a fish and then drink like one.

You can also buy pretzels in the form of animals. With the stuff you have to drink nowadays this is the only way you can see any.

A man used to be able to get a few animals with every drink, but now he has to buy his menagerie on the side.

The advantage in the pretzel menagerie is that you know just what wild beasts you're going to see.

Some men used to see so many pink elephants and blue monkeys that they almost went crazy. A lot of guys got rid of them by giving up drink, but others wore amber glasses.

When you see a man taking a box of these alphabetical pretzels into his house you don't know whether he's a bootlegger or a grammarian.

These pretzels are supposed to make you want a drink, but prohibition has made more men thirsty than all the pretzels in the country.
